THE GENTLE BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE:

dateline: Chinatown, San Francisco, California, U.S.A.

By Lana Hamilton Bailey, '56

By way of an introduction to my most happy experiences here in Chinatown, for those readers unfamiliar with the fortitude of the Chinese people of California, Samuel Lee has graciously consented to let me borrow a bit of background data from a report he did earlier, for the Research department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, entitled San Francisco's Chinatown—History, Function and Importance of Social Organizations.

The Chinese migrated to this country as early as 1845 when word of the discovery of gold reached Hong Kong. Due to extortionate taxes, they were unable to stake claims, but with the beginning of the railroad movement they were contracted to meet this country's shortage of construction labor. Leland Stanford attributed the completion of the Central Pacific lines to them. They then drifted to San Francisco. Their services were in demand in development of farming, fruit, and canneries on the Pacific Coast. Sole credit for the foundation of California's vast agricultural empire is due them. After 1880 the Chinese houseboy became a tradition among America's better families, and from this they came to man the hotel, restaurant, and laundry industries. By 1890, the gold cycle completed, mines petered out and jobs for all were scarce. Chinese labor was accused of ruining the backbone of America. The Chinese worker assented and withdrew from competition with American labor. Rigid immigration laws were enforced. The Chinese here, then began small businesses, catering to other Chinese across the country. Domestic service and the garment industry provided work for a fair share of the population.

The Chinese immigrants, strongly conscious of poverty, restraints of law, religion and close family ties, faced grave problems here in a strange land. Unlike some earlier settlers of the Atlantic Coast, they were ignorant of the English language and were discriminated against which necessitated banding together. The early Chinese settlement was made up largely of Familial groups centered around a given family's merchandise store. Persons arriving would seek shelter with representatives until sent for by a relative in another area. From this grew the Family Associations. These contained members with a common surname and membership was an inherent right. They play a vital role, even today, in the lives of the Chinese since they look to their association for assistance, social life and welfare aid. Each has its own building in which to meet and control is vested in the hands of the older generation who are responsible for protecting the honor of the name and solving member problems. Since San Francisco's chinatown is the largest Chinese settlement outside China, 50,000 strong, responsibility falls heavily on the elders of the local units. Their decisions are adhered to faithfully and weaker members are protected by a solidarity common only to a Chinese community. The District Association allowed for more control, but the development of the Chinese Six Companies satisfied the community's desire for one powerful voice of authority. This is perhaps the most publicized Chinese group in America. It is made up of representatives from the other organizations and they function much as a Chinese Embassy acting as the official body for Chinese in America. These organizations operate through group pressure. The behavior of an individual reflects on the group as a whole making conformity necessary. This society is closely knit by ties of kinship and tradition which makes rights of an individual secondary to the honor of the group. Thus vicious elements are fairly well controlled. The Tong wars, murders and violence of the early days are largely imaginative works of overzealous newspapermen. Churches play a key role in Chinatown's history and many language schools stem from church workers sent into the community. Public schools and welfare agencies have wielded a great deal of influence in Chinatown. The department of Public Health maintains a well baby clinic and child welfare center, dental facilities and an immunization program. At first the Chinese community was opposed to the action of the Board of Education of the city in opening a school in Chinatown as it was regarded as an attempt at segregation. The Commodore Stockton School, however, through the sympathetic understanding of the principal and faculty brought about better relationships between Chinatown and the city as a whole—and now 50 years later I can attest to that fact, since Commodore Stockton School has been the site of my teaching activities for the past six, glorious years.

The Commodore Stockton School is the largest elementary school in the San Francisco Unified School District with an enrollment of approximately 1,050 predominantly Chinese children in grades K through 6, with a faculty of 34, several of whom are Chinese. During the past half century she has stood as a beloved monument to learning in the heart of Chinatown. In order to facilitate the expanding populace of Grant Avenue and environs, the physical plant has expanded from one building, the Original Oriental school, to the present total of three buildings. The newest, a modern edifice with many conveniences, was completed shortly before I took up residency in one of the three kindergarten rooms in 1958. The outstanding faculty harmony is largely due to our young and vibrant Principal, Caesar J. Orsini. Humor adds staying power to any situation; it is a significant factor in the atmosphere here.

As I try to reflect back to the first months of this adventure, I am quite sure my appraisal must have been a rather confused emotion or two. While there is no doubt that these five year olds are among the most beautiful and mannerly children I have observed either here or in Europe, the lack of English comprehension is nonetheless baffling to the newcomer. Much credit for our parent-teacher relationships and general smooth functioning is due our two Chinese secretaries. They have rescued me from many a communication problem.

A few years ago there was little communication with three-quarters of my parents due to their strictly Chinese environment and lack of necessity to learn any other way of life outside their compact community. All school notices still go home written in English and Chinese so that they will be better informed of their schools activities. In many cases I am the children's first close Caucasian association. I shall never forget David, among my first wondrous glimpses who spent the opening week of school behind the coats which line one wall of our room. One huge almond eye followed my every move, until finally his fears about this strange Missie Bailey were calmed, and he decided to take the big move and join us in a circle game. Out of necessity, I learned a few simple Chinese phrases to supplement my sign language attempts and in no time David and associates and I were fast friends.

The children have a strong allegiance to this country in Kindergarten, and I marvel at the reasoning behind such statements as, "You English lady-We Chinese but we all Americans." I am also greatly impressed by the respect they hold for teacher and learning as evidenced by five-year-old Betty. I was teaching a lesson which particularly delighted her, and another child had asked how come I know so many things when Betty interjected, "My Daddy say—Missie Bailey know ellything in whole world. You learn and come teach me. Then I be smart, too." I was moved to wonder if I was giving my all to this most receptive young audience. The parents express this respect in many ways throughout the year. On several occasions while shopping in Chinatown, I have been warmly greeted by an elder, with expressions of appreciation for our kindness to the children. The injustices these people were subjected to decades ago, in their youth, are still part of the city's shame. No other group is so much a part of the city's history. Their contribution has been considerable.

I remember vividly the first time I took a class to see movies in our school auditorium. The children kept getting up and running through the aisles, chatting and eating candy much to my amazement. I finally learned, the hard way, that picnic lunches are the procedure when the whole family attends a local Chinese movie or Opera. Luckily my class hadn't had sufficient warning to come prepared.

There have been, on occasion, refugees among my students and those with benefit of some formal schooling in Hong Kong or Canton made good learning adjustments to Kindergarten here. Through brush and ink work their hand muscles were developed making the transition to pencil and printing an easy task. Most of them have been alert and eager and usually begin picking up some English rapidly. Some others had experienced tent living in poverty stricken areas of Hong Kong and hunger for them was an automatic reflex. Often they would grab several crackers from the nutrition tray and gobble them faster than the eye could follow, but the self-restraint of the others was impressive. I never heard a complaint about the injustice of it all, even though they understood that it was one cracker to a customer. No doubt they had heard similar stories of their parents' early experiences. They are basically kind and helpful in their relationships with one another—but this is not to infer that they are unaware of the differences in clothing and their traditional saucer haircut, etc. The American-born often refer to their new-found peers as "those Chinese children."

Each year I have witnessed a lessening of the old Chinese aura and with the emergence of third-generation mothers, born and educated here, comes an updating of ideas. This influence is significant and subsequent changes are taking place in both social and economic strata. There fortunately remains just enough of the older generation's stable influence to keep the environment on an even and charmingly quaint keel. The Chinese Elders are justly proud of their cultural heritage, among the oldest and finest in the history of civilization, and they work earnestly to instill in the youngsters their sense of purpose and pride. They use their language exclusively and since the children spend considerable time with them, the primary objective in Kindergarten has been, in the past, the teaching of English. Now through the evolution of change, what with the benefit of modern parents and traditional elders, most of the children have a solid foundation in both languages by five years of age. For example, among my two classes this year, there were only seven non-English speaking children and by June they all had had a good start.

Most children, after reaching their sixth birthday, attend several hours of Chinese language school each day in addition to their public school experience. Thus they keep abreast of both cultures. They are serious and conscientious students for the most part. These factors all contribute to their over-all good behavior. Discipline problems are at a minimum, relatively speaking.

During my first years here, the women teachers wore cheong sams on all state occasions such as Open House, P.T.A. evening functions, etc. This was a colorful note and its manifestation of respect was greatly appreciated by the parents. We usually had a child in full Chinese traditional garb serving as room host or hostess also.

They seem to have an affinity for numbers as evidenced by their enthusiasm for the Cuisenaire Math program. This fall we will begin an experimental study with sets and numbers from the Greater Cleveland Math Program in Kindergarten.

Each year the word is passed on from big brother to the next candidate that on party days the other Missie Bailey, in the form of my mother, will come to visit and bring a treat. Their strong family feeling is evidenced when at Christmas time, she too is included in the abundance of gifts which pour forth for teacher. They are extremely generous people, and when at the first Christmas I attempted to discourage these acts of kindness, I was promptly told that it is poor form and bad luck not to accept. Consequently, I have a marvelous collection of rice bowls and some beautiful water colors painted by a parent among my souvenirs.

The biggest excitement each year in Chinatown comes in February with the Chinese New Year. The elders distribute coins in good luck envelopes of red rice paper to the children which are usually set aside for their future education. On rare occasions these envelopes are in turn passed on to someone they love and respect along with a tangerine with leaves and stem intact. These signify growth and prosperity and it is an honor when teacher is chosen as recipient. The Mothers cook elaborate delicacies during the holidays and each year I receive a supply for my whole family. Some of the children wear their silk brocades and the ornate lion occasionally honors us with a visit to school collecting money for the Chinese Hospital.

They greet the New Year with new clothes whenever possible. However they all try hard to have new shoes for it is bad luck to step into old shoes on New Years Day.

The year itself begins quietly with domestic contemplation and later extensive house cleaning to insure removal of evil spirits thus paving the way for good health and prosperity ushered in with the New Year. Then things seem to explode like a giant firecracker into ten full days of celebration. The Grant Avenue markets and sidewalks are lined with azalea blossoms and the Avenue itself is strung with colorful lanterns against the backdrop of Chinese music pouring forth out of every shop along the way.

The glitter and pageantry of the New Years Parade marks the climax of all celebrating. The main feature is the fabulous Dragon—symbol of peace—and 125 feet of golden splendor. He has horns of the deer, claws of the eagle, the body of a serpent and legs of the specially trained men who dance along the Avenue underneath the yards of Hong Kong imported silk. Caucasians trip by the thousand from all over the city on this festive evening, to help their patient and honorable neighbors celebrate. This seems incongruous since the Chinese concept of the holiday is so much more civilized than our own.

The Chinese funeral, for a dignitary, a dramatic and moving ceremony, is one occasion when all Kindergarten activity must halt and if at all possible the children want to watch. A band plays loud patriotic music, followed by the family mourners on foot and a life-sized picture of the deceased precedes the hearse and cars. Recently, while a large group was inching its way down Clay Street, bordering our Kindergarten patio, Michael announced that it was General MacArthur's funeral. I explained that his was far away in Virginia but Michael wondered, "How come him not here in Chinatown?" After a thoughtful pause he answered, "Oh, I know—him not Chinese, Ha?"

So many priceless jewels spill forth each day and regrettably they lose their sparkle in the transfer to paper. But how about, "When we get to High School, Missie Bailey, will we have yellow hair, too?"—The answer to that dilemma never fails to floor me.

Their names are a most fascinating collection ranging from the old Biblical favorites through the full gamut of the floral species to those in the public favor at the moment. Tigar and Lotus were my favorites among my first little friends—and theirs was a true romance interrupted only by graduation to first grade and being placed in different rooms.

Even today, in the Year of the Dragon, 1964, we find the largest percentage of the Chinese people still dwelling within the confines of this half-mile radius set in the very heart of this intensely beautiful and cosmopolitan city. Some have prospered in their local businesses and moved to more residential areas of town, but their clansmen still observe the customs of their ancestors, for the most part.

The old people are dignified because they are treated with respect; the children are secure in the love and devotion which abounds and their parents work hard and tend to their own affairs. They are aloof but never rude, temperate without being stuffy and excellent cooks which I have experienced both in the Chinese home and tourist style. Most visitors and natives alike will agree that good Chinese food is among the wonders of the world.

Thus, I refer to the Chinese as the beautiful people since their courageous spirit and humility seem to reflect an inner peace which has helped make their race loved and respected by all who have known them intimately. Their serene countenance in the midst of this frantic 20th Century is indeed a phenomenon.

I am currently attempting to study the Cantonese characters and language which will be helpful here in Chinatown and also, next summer when I plan to visit the land of their ancestors with a Chinese friend and fellow teacher. Perhaps I will have the opportunity, at a later date, to relate further my experiences to you.

memo from the alumnae office

by John J. Canavan, Jr.

The big news from the Alumnae Office is success. The success is not ours at the College but yours—the Lesley alumnae.

These are two, and both successes are very significant. The first—your Alumnae Reunion last June. Never was so much fun had by so many people. The second—your first Alumnae Annual Giving Program which, by the way, may have established a new record. A complete report on this Program plus the names of all who contributed to it starts on page 10.

In this issue's Memo from the Alumnae Office I was going to give you a glowing report on the social success of the year—the Alumnae Reunion. Before I had a chance to start it, however, a letter arrived from Mary Esther Crankshaw Johnson '32 thanking the Alumnae Association for a wonderful reunion. With it she sent a journal of her thoughts the day following. It was so well done that I called and asked her if I could use it in the next issue of the Lesley Review. She graciously consented. Our thanks to you, Mary.

One last thought before Mary takes over the page: the new Alumnae Association Constitution became effective on July 1 as the result of an overwhelming vote in favor of it. Over 97% of those responding voted "yes". To all of you who voted, either "yes" or "no", my sincere thanks.

thoughts on the 1964 lesley college alumnae reunion

by Mary Esther Crankshaw Johnson '32

There I stood, in the lobby of the Barn at 1200 Beacon Street, surrounded by the swish of silken skirts, and the eager reaching of white-gloved hands for other white-gloved hands. I could view the scene from the detached heights of an alumna returning for a school reunion, after years of traveling to foreign ports and being entertained in fabulous places. Also, from the certain kind of "aloneness" that comes with being the only one from the class of 1932 to show up. The prospective pleasure in the ensuing cocktail hour, dinner, and dance were definitely in question.

The impression of well-bred, mature enthusiasm among the attractively gowned women and girls, accompanied by well-dressed, obviously to a degree, affluent husbands and bachelor escorts, flicked my subconscious, as my own, definitely properly categorized husband rejoined me from checking our wraps. The Lesley College Alumnae were well into their reunion, which was honoring, especially, all "4 and 9" year graduating classes—1914, 1919, 1924, 1929, 1934, 1939, etc., up to, and including, 1964. I looked around me with interest. I was not actually alone. Not, anyway, as long as my husband was with me. I had met him during our college days, and he was as familiar with Lesley's campus—its pluses and minuses—even as you and I. Perhaps more so!

Then down the stairs came our, "flashing, brown-eyed Bobby Davis"—now Mrs. Donald Young of Wellesley, mother of five, and wearing the years since 1933 lightly. Don was with her, and our evening came to life.

From the head table—through the numerous tables for ten, accommodating the graduates of the years since 1924 to the present, the evening was a fun one. The welcome from Mrs. Helen Mather Benjamin, the President of the Alumnae Association, was sincere. The orchestra, a mighty good one, Jerry Davis, could easily have been lifted right out of my prom days, when orchestras were musical achievements! A roving contingent of musicians played appropriately to Dr. Don A. Orton, President of the college, and his wife; Dr. and Mrs. Mark V. Crockett; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Benjamin; Mr. John J. Canavan, young and popular assistant to the President and to the lovely, and charmingly efficient Miss Mary Ellen Neelon, on whom, together with the capable Ann Haffer '61 and Diane Sharp Hadelman '60, most of the office and organizational work for the reunion fell.

The individual tables received musical tributes also. The honored classes were called out on the dance floor, by year, and the hit tunes of each were nostalgically remembered in harmony. Later in the evening, when all who chose to be were on the floor, then came the "mixer" of "change partners". One Kentucky Colonel—(not really a Colonel, but a perfect replica, if I ever saw one, with abundant white hair and moustache accenting the bronzed image of the inveterate golfer!), while dancing with me, commented on the unusually good looking women at his table, and then, like the gallant he was, brought out the best of my dancing prowess—a forte from way back when I would rather dance than eat—so that when "change your partners" was called from the bandstand, the evening was well into being a most gala occasion.

With everyone knowing everyone else, by the time Mrs. Barbara Smith Effenson, class of 1961, and Mr. Ira Gilman were invited to sing with the orchestra, we found we were all as proud of their presentations as the class which produced Barbara and Della Rose Gilman '61, by whose courtesy Mr. Gilman was present and available!

Pictures were taken during the evening, and when you see those smiles—they were not all supplied by saying, "Cheese"! And that's a fact.

The dinner, praises be, was served by cheerful waitresses, and you know what that contributes to any meal. It was delectable.

No one was officious. The speeches were short! No one was relegated to any specific era. The newer alumnae, if anything, were respectfully respectful of the older grads, who displayed their calibre with finesse and confidence. The music was reminiscent and the rendition of "Hello

Dr. Nancy Woods and Dr. Mark Crockett brought Alumnae and friends up to date at Lesley's Alumnae College.

A one and a two and a three.

Dolly", sung in the manner of the inimitable "Satchmo" Armstrong, could have transported the listener, dancing with closed eyes, directly to the New York theatre of its origin!

Following the inception of "Impressions", with the class of 1932, may I continue as your Year Book Editor for a bit of a summary?

Lesley College, 1964.

Lesley College, named for the famed Lord Lesley, an aristocrat of the Scottish hills, is situated in historic Cambridge, Massachusetts. It is an institution of higher learning, second to none in its field, offering graduate school courses, as well as undergraduate, and is served by a distinguished faculty of both men and women. Impressions:

Judging from the success of its alumnae, both academically and socially, and the graciousness of its members, individually and collectively, Lesley College Alumnae Reunion Weekend of 1964 was well worth the tremendous effort expended in bringing it about—from the first "Hello's", through the specially held "Alumnae Classes", the informal gatherings, the dinner dance, and right on to the last "Goodbye's," it will go down in history as being unusual in its aura of iridescent, puncture-proof bubbles; its wholeheartedness, permeated with an underlying sense of responsibility; its goal of achieving a firm, steady, foundation for its "Future Teachers of America." It was highlighted by the creation of an awareness of the importance of living, so beautifully evidenced at the 1964 Reunion. The College is not to be held back in its ascendancy! Vive le Lord Lesley!

ALUMNAE ANNUAL GIVING PROGRAM MAY HAVE SET RECORD

The first Alumnae Annual Giving Program that Lesley has ever conducted may have set an all-time national record. In checking collegiate associations the country over we have been unable to find any college, large or small, that has matched our record of percentage of participation in the first year of an Alumnae Annual Giving Program. These national collegiate associations will make their final determination on our record this fall. If we have set a national record it may never be beaten by any college. If we have not, we have come very close and each of you should be very proud of yourself and of your College.

What is all this excitement about? Just this: 30% of all of our alumnae gave to Lesley's first Alumnae Annual Giving Program. This is almost one out of every three Lesley alumnae. This is wonderful for the first year the College has ever asked all her alumnae to help make her a better school by financially supporting her. Most colleges eventually reach the 30% level of alumnae support and many reach 50 or 60 percent but none to our knowledge has ever gone over 30 percent in the first year.

The College and her Alumnae Association are grateful and so present the following salute to all the classes and particularly to the 625 loyal Lesley daughters who gave over eight and a half thousand dollars this year to their Alma Mater.

LESLEY ORGANIZES PARENTS ASSOCIATION

In May of 1964, during Parents Weekend, a group of parents met with President Don A. Orton and members of the College Administration. Working together throughout the weekend they established what is now the National Lesley Parents Association.

For three years prior to this, parents have been solicited for support in many ways. Invariably the parents have answered the call. The name of Ralph Rose is familiar to hundreds of parents.

What the National Lesley Parents Association accomplishes is the organization of all parents dedicated to the greater good of the College.

The officers of the National Lesley Parents Association are: President: Paul Magee, Vice-President: Mrs. Richard Turner, Vice-President: Francis X. Rosner, Secretary: Mrs. Bernard S. Siskind, Treasurer: Ralph Rose.

Dear Lesley Parents:

This issue of the Lesley Review offers me my first opportunity as President of the National Lesley Parents Association to communicate with all mothers and fathers of Lesley girls and to make you aware of the great and pressing need for parents to help the College that is doing so much for our daughters.

The dedication of the administration, faculty, and staff of Lesley has been an inspiration to me personally as well as to the officers and directors of the Parents Association. However, in the highly competitive education market that exists today, this is not enough. Lesley needs the strong enthusiastic backing of its Alumnae, friends, and parents.

As Lesley parents, our support is sorely needed! If Lesley is to grow, if Lesley is to build a new multimillion dollar campus, if Lesley is to provide the education and inspiration to our daughters that Dr. Don A. Orton foresees in his planning. The Parents organization has a deep obligation to provide necessary support. You have recently received a letter from Dr. Orton advising you of the formation of the Parents Association, and of its relation to the College and of Lesley's great needs that parents can fulfill.

Our first project, as organized parents, is to provide the necessary level of financial support to enable the College Development officer to approach the various foundations for a large portion of the funds which Lesley must have. As Parents, we can provide the "acorns" from which the great Lesley "oaks" of the future will grow.

You will be contacted by a member of your regional parents' group relative to your personal participation in our program. Please receive this person enthusiastically and pledge your wholehearted cooperation to your local group and to your daughter's College.

Lesley needs the National Lesley Parents Association! The association needs the help of every mother and father. As parents, let's back the College that is doing such a superb job of educating our daughters!

Cordially,
PAUL D. MAGEE

Speaking Personally

This issue of the Lesley Review marks the third year of publication. In past columns, I have reminisced. I have attempted to keep you up to date. I have dared to dream about Lesley's future and have invited you to dream along with me. I believe that this is fitting and proper. For Lesley is a place where dreams are born and this administration and faculty is rushing to keep a promise with the future.

The sound of time ticks lightly by, but in the past four years progress has become a Lesley hallmark. Where once our campus consisted of nine buildings, today there are eighteen buildings. Where once our Faculty included four with earned doctorates, today our Faculty boasts fourteen members with earned doctorates. The College library has doubled its floor space and its holdings to the point where it now includes some 32,000 volumes and this is still increasing.

The Graduate School is becoming more pronounced and in the same breath the College Laboratory Schools are continuing to make an important impact upon the community.

Another important sign of growth is in the fact that more and more people are now becoming aware of Lesley; and they are becoming deeply interested in what we are trying to accomplish.

Through it all, one of the more disheartening elements has been in the lack of support that the "Lesley Family" has offered the College. Now, I am personally gratified to tell you that this is changing. You—the Alumnae have set a national record in first-time annual Alumnae giving campaigns. You—the mothers and fathers of our students and Alumnae have rallied together to form the National Lesley Parents Association and pledged yourselves to collecting your respective talents and extra dollars in support of the College.

Something there is that makes a simple "thank you" sound woefully hollow at times like this. Perhaps this is because each one of you has a very real share in Lesley and a very definite place in the College. There is much to be done. A "new" Lesley is being planned and each one of you is as much a part of our proposed new campus as would be if your names were on each brick. Together we will do great things. We dare not fail. The stakes are much too high.

Don A. Orton

WORCESTER ALUMNAE CLUB

SCRIBE: Bettijane Bockoven Manoog '57

A spring luncheon meeting was held at the Mt. Pleasant Country Club. Gladys Pollett Young greeted 49 alumnae, guest speakers, and prospective college students. Caryl Marrone Masiello, Chairman, introduced the main speaker, Jay Canavan. Mr. Canavan spoke on the "Present and Future of Lesley College". Mr. Francis Cunningham from the Worcester County National Bank showed a movie "Invitation to the World's Fair".

The following slate of officers was presented for the 1964-65 year: Blanche Lewis Freeland '20; Caryl Marrone Masiello '57; Bettijane Bockoven Manoog '57; Donna Rinquist Crawford '53; Louise Caci Doherty '57; Esther Resnick Leavitt '56; Helen Prescott Taylor '28; Miriam Edinberg Goldberg '31; Jeanne Thayer Dunford '34; Ethel Durrie Berghuis '46; Marguerite Ann Rienstra Cleverly, Jr. '33; Elizabeth Donlan Cooney '56; Gladys Pollett Young '26.

NORFOLK ALUMNAE CLUB

SCRIBE: Barbara Street Berry '51

Following a meeting at the Harlfinger School, the Club approved:

1. Annual $2.00 dues running from September to September.
2. Three meetings a year to include one in September or early October with a speaker or a travelogue; one in January; and a dinner meeting in April.
3. Formation of the following working committees: Program Committee, Refreshment Committee, Telephone Committee, Pick-Up Committee.

Also, the Norfolk Alumnae Club is planning its own regional newsletter.

CONNECTICUT ALUMNAE CLUB

SCRIBE: Betsy Dexter Bedrick '54

The first formal meeting of Lesley alumnae living in the Connecticut area was held April 9th. at the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Hartford. The thirty-six enthusiastic alumnae present at the dinner meeting became charter members of the Connecticut branch of the Alumnae Association. Jane (Ditiberio) Johnson '54 was elected Convener and Betsy (Dexter) Bedrick '54 was elected Scribe.

The warmth of renewing old friendships and meeting new fellow alumnae rounded out a delightful meeting. The highlight of the evening was Jay Canavan's talk describing the plans and progress being made towards the establishment of the Lesley village campus.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA ALUMNAE CLUB SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA LESLEY ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

SCRIBE: Jacqueline Robinson Mason, '56

The officers of the Southern California Association had a delightful dinner with Dr. Don Orton at the Statler Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles in February. Jane Spaulding Mormon, '49; Beverly Miller, '60; and Jacqueline Robinson Mason, '56 discussed with President Orton the changes at Lesley throughout the past year and plans for the future.

It was suggested that, in order to attract high school seniors from the area to enrollment at Lesley, placing Lesley College catalogs in local city and school libraries as well as personal contact with guidance counselors should be extended and repeated.

A desire to help Lesley graduates find placement in Southern California schools was also expressed by the members present at the meeting. It was decided that anyone wishing any information concerning schools in the area surrounding Los Angeles should write to the club scribe:

SAN FRANCISCO ALUMNAE CLUB

SCRIBE: Judy Hurley Machado, '60

The February meeting of the San Francisco Alumnae Club had a good turnout and welcomed a new member from Burlingame; Mrs. J. E. (Berle) Cosgrave, 155 Los Robies Drive. Two articles on Lesley were discussed: "Find the college that needs you" in the March issue of "Glamour"; and a newspaper reprint, "Teacher Training Being Revamped".

Dues have again been set at $5.00 and may be sent to: Sandra Tierney, 1411 Saratoga Ave., Apt. 151, San Jose, Calif. Checks are to be made payable to Lesley Alumnae Club.

A dinner meeting in May was held at Veneto's Restaurant off Fisherman's Wharf. Lana Bailey '56 told us of some of her experiences teaching in Chinatown and also brought a clipping from a Pennsylvania newspaper about Lesley student, Mrs. Lewis, attending classes with her 6 weeks old baby. This story was also carried by the San Jose Mercury, with three photos, here in California.

A delightful note from MARY KING STEVENS tells us about her family. She and Bill now have two girls and a boy and the older girl is now married and living in France. Mom and Dad visited her while they were touring Europe in May. Their younger girl is an Interior Designer while their son is a Sophomore in High School. MARY recently had lunch with VIRGINIA CARTER WARNECK of Wayne, Pa., now the mother of three boys and DORIS DEWEY DELANEY of Albany, N.Y. who has seven children and 3 grandchildren.

RUTH LOFTUS TUNNICLIFFE received her Bachelor's degree from Boston University in 1941 with a minor in music. She taught music at Friends Academy in New Bedford for two years. Ruth and husband William now live in Winchester with their four children: Peter, 12; Virginia, 10; Elizabeth, 8; and Billy, 5.

Living a full life is ANNA OLSON WATSON. Married for 18 years to husband, James, the WATSON family includes two sons, Bing, 14 and Karl, 13. Anna also finds time to teach sub-primary through the second grade in Boothbay Harbor Region, Maine.

We love to get letters like this: "I wish to commend you and your co-workers on the splendid job of organizing and carrying through Lesley's first Real Big Reunion. Just thought you would like to hear and see a 'Thank You,' from the only member of the 1940 Class attending the reunion with her husband. The girls who let this reunion pass by did not realize what they would be missing. I am hoping we can have a real good turnout next June at our 25th reunion." JEANETTE PEDERSEN SMITH

1944

It was nice to see HARRIET ALPERT ALLSCHWANG at our 1964 graduation when her cousin graduated. She says that she remembers her Lesley years as very happy ones. She and Abbott have a son Jay who is just entering his Junior year in high school and Hope will be in her sophomore year. She may be a future Lesley girl.

1945

such civic activities as being treasurer of the Erie Day School Parent Group, membership chairman of the League of Women Voters, and active in the Erie Arts Council, and the Erie Civic Ballet Company. After leaving Lesley, Marian taught fourth grade in Marblehead. Now her class consists of three sons: Eugene, Jr., 8; Russell, 6; and Bruce, 3.

ANN S. CASEY is teaching in Medford.

Present in spirit at Lesley's Alumnae Reunion was CYNTHIA WILSON CONNOR who sent in the following note: "Dear Classmates and Friends, I've started to write this note several times but each time I get lost in memories. Those ten years have quickly passed and you all must be enjoying being together again. How I wish I could be with you, but the trip was not possible this time. I'll be at the 15th and my thoughts are with you on the happy 10th. Best Wishes for a marvelously successful reunion to all Loyal Lesley Daughters. How proud we are of her growing strides."

JANE DITIBERIO JOHNSON is residing at 26 Mountain View Drive in Plainville, Connecticut with her husband, Fred. She has just finished "Kiss Me Kate." The JOHNSON family includes two Lesley potentials in recently-born Martha Elaine and Jackilee, 8.

We received this welcome note from SUSAN DALLAHAN LAWLESS: "In the fall of '63 I went back to Lesley for an Alumnae Tea. I had forgotten what first attracted me to the College. It was its warmth and friendliness. It is still there! For two years I taught first grade (which I loved) and was married in 1956. My husband, Jack, is now in business here in Canton with his father (Chevrolet Dealership). I continued teaching for the next 2½ years—until shortly before our daughter was born. Patricia is now five years old. For the past two years I have been substituting. I more than enjoy the LESLEY REVIEW. It keeps me informed and I read it with great interest."

MARY LEARY is teaching in Reading and has spent the past two summers in Hawaii.

MARYLYN MULCAHY MURRAY reports that she is retiring after teaching in Reading for the past nine years.

DELLA MACASKILL SCHULTZ and husband Carl have two children: Mark, 8, and Lesley Ann, 5. Carl is minister of the First Congregational Church of Auburn, Mass.

HARRIET BURNCE BERMAN taught at the Oak Hill School in Newton for two years. Husband Mal is the president of the Farnsworth Press in Boston. The BERMAN family includes Steven, 7; Ernest, 5; and Julie, 1. Julie is a future Lesley gal. Harriet tells us: "The LESLEY REVIEW is a perfect way of keeping in touch. Thank you for making this magazine possible."

NORMA BURNS PUTMAN writes: "Tom and I are still enjoying Pittsburgh, our home, and our family. Henry, now 5, has had half a year of nursery school and is now in kindergarten. Lesley, 3½, just started nursery school. SONNY KRAININ MORRIS 1956 and I have exchanged notes and would love to find others in Pittsburgh to start a club. Anyone care to join us?"

1956

CYNTHIA WILSON PUTNAM taught school for three years. Now, she makes her home in Orange with husband Paul, who teaches at Mahar Regional, and four children, Clayton, 5; Robert, 4; Glen, 3; and Stephen, 1.

1957

SANDRA SHINDELL BERMAN wrote from Indianola, Mississippi to tell us: "I have truly enjoyed the LESLEY REVIEW. My husband, Bob, is a vice-president of Sunflower Food Stores, a regional supermarket chain. We have two daughters (future 'Loyal Lesley Daughters') Marjorie Fay, 6; and Deborah Lynn, 2. I taught first grade one year and then was promoted to music director at a nearby college. Now, I am teaching private voice lessons at home."

"Remember—always buy Domino sugar!" says CLAIRE LEWIS CURRIER whose husband, Donald, is the Assistant Project Engineer (Mechanical Engineer) at the American Sugar Company in Charlestown. Claire is substituting and working for her Master's degree at Lesley. Claire writes: "Our little girl, Nancy Elaine, is three years old and in April we hope she will have a playmate."

CAROL FROTHINGHAM became Mrs. Philip Anderson FORSBECK on June 27, 1964, in Princeton, New Jersey.

Good news from JOAN WEINSTEIN SHERMAN tells us that 2½-year-old Craig Richard now has a new brother born in April and checking in at 9 lbs. Joan and orthodontist husband, Beryl, live at 157 E. Chestnut St., Lancaster, Pa., and would enjoy letters from the old Mellen & Carroll Hall group.

CAROLYN "LYNN" PALMER TIRRELL writes: "Hubby Lee and I are now the proud parents of three sons and a daughter. Ricky, 6; Donnie, 4; Doughie, 3; and Cindy, 1. I taught fourth grade in Germany where Lee was stationed. Lee is now a CPA with an international CPA firm. I, needless to say, am kept very busy at home. The Lesley Review is wonderful!!"

1958

PAULA PHILBRICK TRAPP tells us: "I became Mrs. Carl F. M. Trapp in February, 1962 and did substituting in Great Neck, N.Y. until my son, Chuck, was born in January, 1963. We are expecting a second child in February, 1965. My husband, Carl, is an engineer with Consolidated Edison Company in New York City. Currently, he is working on his Ph.D. and I on my Master's."

1959

CAROLANN HELFONT BERMAN writes "Paul and I were married in April of 1961 and have made our home in Hudson, New York. I have kept busy teaching an accelerated fourth grade. In between school and Paul's furniture store we have spent our vacations traveling."

CAROLE SPILL BERMAN reports: "Martin and I are now proud parents of our second daughter, Susan Eva. Beth Cecile is 4 and they keep me hopping. I recently worked on a committee which raised money to begin a school for the intellectually handicapped in the Lewiston-Auburn area. The school, now operating, offers care, training, and understanding for some of the 2,000 children in the area. I am an active member of the county Women's Republican Club and have been ever since my husband served in Maine's 99th and 100th Legislature. Now he is too busy in the law firm of Berman, Berman and Berman for politics but he does aid and remains active in the Republican Party."

From JOAN PARESKY CHERNOFF of Waltham we received the following: "Look forward to reading the LESLEY REVIEW. I am elated to read of the progress taking place at Lesley. As some of my classmates of the Class of 1958 might remember I took a 'leave of absence' after completing my junior year. In doing so, I was able to tour Europe with husband, Sonny, who was stationed in Paris, France. We had opportunity to tour twelve countries, including Tangiers, North Africa where I timidly rode a camel! Back to Lesley Sept. 1958 to complete my senior year. Following graduation I taught school (1st grade and loved every minute!) in Sudbury. Now, I am busy these days being a mother to our 3½-year-old Lynne Paula and 2½-year-old Robert Lewis—and enjoying every minute of it. Sonny is now Vice President Charge of Sales at Crimson Cigar Co."

SYLVIA OPPENHEIM married Robert Allen Goodwin on April 18, 1964. Both are teaching in Barnstable but make their home in Centerville. Bob is teaching English at the high school while she is teaching in the elementary grades.

JANE ROBERTSON is teaching reading in Cambridge.

1960

NANCY KING FLINN married H. G. after teaching a year in Conn. Son Tommy and Nancy are living there now while H. G. is stationed in Labrador before going to Westover Air Force Base. She says: "H. G. is now a career officer so through the years I should meet with Lesley girls all over the world."

DIANE MARY GRACIA KENNEY will be living on Altus Air Base in Oklahoma for the next few years with her husband, John, and their new son. Before that, Diane taught second grade in New York and Missouri.

SYBIL NASSAU KOPLOWITZ sent us this note: "I began voluntary teaching last spring under the auspices of an Educational Research project conducted by the Salvation Army. It has been fascinating, however, even more exciting is the way the name of Lesley College opens doors. One question from a certain principal: 'What are those Cuisenaire rods all about?' I felt a great deal of pride in Lesley for being able to talk about them. Now, I have to get a set."

LYNNE BALE KOVACS and husband, John, are the proud parents of a son—Andrew James, born on May 6, 1964. Andrew James weighed in at 8 lbs., 7 ounces and was 21 inches long.

SUSAN PRATZNER LINDQUIST wraps it all up as follows: "Married—October, 1962. No kiddies. Teaching second grade—Peabody. Very happy!!!"

THE LAST HURRAH

By Frank R. Mazzaglia

The last time I saw the Class of 1964, it was a sad affair — Commencement Day. Ah, there were smiles. But the smiles were fictitious things and behind each smile was a ready tear. This is why the picture above is not a commencement day picture. Tears just don't represent this class.

I must confess to a bit of personal favoritism towards the Class of 1964. Here is a Class whose every breath was devoted to Lesley College. There was something achingly pure about the way they accepted both the ups and downs of life.

To the Class of 1964, you were unforgettable. Accept this personal tribute, however, as a challenge. Your College needs you. Become involved in Lesley's plans. Support your Alumnae Association. Come to Alumnae Reunions. And see to it that your Class of 1964 never forgets Lesley College.
