ABOUT THE BACK COVER

As the photographer took this picture, Gregory Jackson, of Roxbury, was getting some pointers on planting seeds from Joan Garrey, of Boston, a relocation worker who was an apprentice teacher in the Lesley College Summer School Program. The unique summer school gathered together urban and suburban children to share in a common learning experience. It also provided an opportunity for college graduates who wanted to certify as teachers to get practical training under the guidance of master teachers.

NOTES FROM THE LESLEY ELF'S HOMECOMING DIARY

Well . . . it happened again! Homecoming '67 was even more successful than last year's and other preceding reunion weekends.

Those of you who were here will probably remember the big welcome sign on the outside bulletin board; it had a picture of me on it. Well, if you had hung around the back of that board for a bit, you might have caught a glimpse of me from time to time, peeping through the holes in the board (just about where the eyes of my picture were) and taking in all the goings-on.

And such goings-on. There were young folks and older folks; big folks and little folks. There were married folks and single folks; faculty folks and, of course, lots and lots of alumnae folks.

They started arriving on Friday afternoon and they kept on coming right through Saturday evening. Why . . . I saw Lesley Alumnae come to Homecoming '67 from as far west as Indiana; as far south as Florida; as far north as the Canadian Border; as far east as Boston (and you can't get much farther east than that unless you have a boat or you're a good swimmer).

Things really got started on Friday evening with an informal get-together in White Hall Lounge. This year a special, new feature was added when the Graduate School Alumnae got together to join the fun on Friday. The atmosphere of fun and enjoyment was heightened by the addition of a cocktail pianist and a vocalist.

Saturday morning, I quietly stole into the lounge once again — only now, it had been transformed into a small auditorium for the morning's activities. Dr. Don A. Orton gave the opening address. He talked about Lesley — how its student enrollment has increased to 580; how the faculty has increased in size and, I might add, in the high number of faculty who hold Ph.D.s.

ALUMNAE
SPOTLIGHT

Dr. Russell Schofield took over the program to conduct a memorial service for Dr. Mark V. Crockett, after which members of the Class of 1957 presented a Lesley College Chair to the Student Government Association in memory of Dr. Crockett.

Mr. Majid Tehranian, an instructor in Economics at Lesley, gave the keynote address. He discussed the problems of Viet Nam from the perspective of it being an underdeveloped country. Mr. Tehranian pointed out the internal and external pressures that can befall a nation that is hungry and ridden with sickness and disease, and lacking in education.

A picnic lunch signalled the beginning of the afternoon's activities. Then, a campus tour was made and the annual cruise on the Charles got underway.

I was ready for another snooze by this time (especially since I had eaten such a big lunch) so I found myself a cozy corner, put down my pipe and lantern and prepared myself for "forty winks". But, just before I closed my eyes, I saw folks heading towards White Hall for a bit of bridge, and others were making their way to the gym for some hot table tennis matches.

ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED AT HOMECOMING '67

Joyce Ann Crockett '68 is the recipient of the Lesley College Alumnae Association Scholarship for 1967-68. Joyce, a resident of Marblehead, Massachusetts, was presented with the award at Homecoming '67 by Janet Silva G'58, presently a member of the Association Board and, formerly Chairman of the Alumnae Scholarship Committee.

The Scholarship is awarded each year to a senior Lesley student who exemplifies the high standards of academic achievement, character, and professionalism that typify a Lesley graduate in the field of elementary education.

Joyce, who is currently student-teaching in the Watertown Public School System, has long been interested in teaching as a career.

While in high school, she was a semi-finalist in the American Field Service Program. At Lesley, she has been a member of the Emerald Key Honor Society since her freshman year. In her junior year, Joyce was Class President, a member of the Parents' Weekend Committee, and Circulation Editor for the "Pendulum", the College's annual literary publication.

I woke up in time to put on my best bib and tucker, steal into the library and find myself a comfortable perch on top of a bookshelf. From my hideaway, I watched as alumnae, faculty and administration members got together for a champagne reception.

The champagne was just right to sharpen appetites for the dinner that followed; and the dancing that came later was just right to help everyone work off the calories from the scrumptious steak dinner.

Since the evening was "warmish", I decided to stay outside and went back to my spot behind the bulletin board. Before long, folks were dancing in the amphitheatre to the music of a fine band, who also moved outside to take full advantage of the warm, starry night.

When the goodnight dance was played, everyone was tired and happy — particularly Beatrice Marden Glickman '40 and Phillis Beninati Ficociello '57, the Co-chairmen of this year's Homecoming. The ladies could see that their efforts had not only been worthwhile, but that they were really appreciated by everyone who attended the week-end. I was wishing that I could step out and congratulate them personally, but I felt that at such a late hour, they might not believe their eyes if they saw a real, live elf walking towards them.

At any rate, I'm sure the ladies know how enthusiastic I was about seeing so many of my alumnae friends. And I'm equally sure they know (and you can bet on this) that I'll be on hand for next year's Homecoming. I hope I'll see you there, too.

LESLEY'S SUMMER SCHOOL FOR CHILDREN

A UNIQUE LEARNING EXPERIENCE FOR CHILDREN AND ASPIRING TEACHERS!

Seventy-five elementary school children from greater Boston urban and suburban communities were brought together this summer to share in a unique and exciting learning experience at the Lesley College Summer School for Children.

The program, operated at the Lesley-Ellis School, provided opportunities for youngsters from areas such as Roxbury, Cambridge, Dedham, Reading, and Belmont to continue their education during the summer months. At the same time, the program helped college graduates who want to become teachers — but who have not had a teacher education background — to fulfill some of the requirements for teacher accreditation in the state of Massachusetts.

The apprentice teachers, from backgrounds ranging from that of a housewife to a psychology research assistant, worked with the children under the guidance of accredited master teachers from local school systems, and faculty members of Lesley College.

Grace Kelly (left), a state civil service worker, was among those who enrolled in the summer program at Lesley to prepare for teacher certification. Here, she and another "apprentice" teacher help children conduct a nature experiment on the grounds of Lesley-Ellis School.

The emphasis at the summer school was, of course, on learning — both for the younger students as well as the older students. Subjects such as math and reading and social science were covered, as well as art and drama. The method of teaching, however, was based on a creative approach. This allowed each apprentice teacher to demonstrate her abilities at class planning and allowed each child to participate to his fullest capabilities. Teachers and children alike were encouraged to “be themselves”; to feel free to interact, raise questions, and make points during each school day.

To those teachers who are used to thinking of a class of thirty pupils as “normal”, the teacher-pupil ratio at the Lesley College Summer School will seem astounding: it was one teacher for every four children. Although far from the average in most school systems, this allowed a great amount of individual attention to be paid to each child. It also provided an opportunity for the apprentice teacher to evaluate her methods as she conducted her classes.

A typical class session of the Lesley College Summer School, which ran from 8:30 until 11:30 each weekday morning during July and the first half of August, would have shown clusters of children from a wide variety of socio-economic and ethnic backgrounds surrounding their teacher in classrooms, corridors, or on the playground.

Each child was eager and responsive; each was in a setting where he could be aware of himself and his classmates as individuals, and where he and his new-found friends could share in the many exciting discoveries of learning.

The success of the summer program can best be described by Mr. William C. Terris, a Lexington educator, who directed the school. Mr. Terris said, “The program has gathered children from widely differing backgrounds into a learning setting common to all. That this has paid off can be measured by the large numbers of children and their parents who have expressed a desire to return for next year’s program. In addition, the program provided real, in-depth teaching experiences for our apprentice teachers that might otherwise not have been available to them.”

Children and teachers at the Lesley College Summer School were not restricted to classrooms. Here, young students work together in the informal setting of a hall at the Lesley-Ellis School, where the summer program operated. The youngsters were busily engaged in the construction of a model city, with assistance being offered by their “apprentice” teacher.

“Apprentice” teachers in the Lesley College Summer School Program gathered in the afternoon of each class day to discuss what had occurred in the morning and to make plans for the following day. The aspiring teachers, all college graduates, came from occupations such as school nursing, relocation work, psychology research, and counseling.

ANNUAL ALUMNAE GIVING PROGRAM

1966-67 REPORT

New Records Set — Contributions

Were 12% Over Last Year

There are many ways of helping Lesley College in its educational programs, research and service to the Nation. One of the easiest and most obvious paths available to the alumna is the Alumnae Association's Annual Giving Program. That many alumnae are aware of this means of support is evidenced by the results of our most recent program.

Alumnae should be justly proud that this was the most successful Annual Giving effort in terms of dollars given, $8,583, and in average gift to the college, $17.62. Previously, the year 1963-64 — when our very first program was conducted — stood out as our top achievement. In that year $8,510.50 was given with an average gift of $13.62. The new record represents a 12% increase over contributions last year.

The wide range of gifts for designated purposes reflects thoughtful giving on the part of many alumnae, and the more than $7,000 in unrestricted gifts will enable President Don A. Orton to improve programs which he considers highest priority in the areas of faculty benefits and student financial aid. As President Orton pointed out in his 1965-66 annual report to the Trustees, college enrollments continue to skyrocket and business and industry are accelerating their competition for young Ph.D.'s, which progressively aggravates the problem of recruitment, development and retention of highly qualified faculty members. In addition, Lesley is located in an area where private college salaries are the highest in the Nation.

Not surprisingly, alumnae gave according to their means, as individual gifts ranged from $1.00 to more than $500.00. The earlier classes with fewer members generally led the others in percentage of participation. They were headed by the class of 1917 with 57 percent as four of the seven members contributed. The class of 1961, however, had the largest number of contributors — 29.

Two classes representing different generations of Lesley graduates — 1929 and 1964 — led two other statistical categories. The 29ers were the most generous, on average, with a per capita gift of $39.61, while the class of 1964 contributed the highest number of dollars — $713.00. A large portion of the gifts from the class of 1964 will support the college's audio-visual lab, which the class pledged as a gift at the time of graduation.

Special projects also benefitted from the gifts of two other classes. The class of 1962 gave $128.00 toward tutorial room furnishings, and the class of 1963 contributed $315.00 for the curriculum lab. Designated gifts from individuals included a total of $224.00 for library books, $131.05 for scholarships and $50.00 for the campus building fund.

One disappointing note which is a concern of all of us is the overall percentage of participation, which this year was 17.0%. There has been a steady decline in participation since the initial high point of 30.7% in 1963-64. The larger sizes of our recent graduating classes are a definite contributing factor. However, while a number of new contributors are added to the rolls each year, another sizeable number seem to fall into the category of those who contributed last year but not this year. In order to attract increasing, substantial support from government and private foundations so that it may continue to grow and improve, Lesley must have the demonstrated continuing support of all its alumnae.

It was wonderful to hear from so many of you who included notes along with your contributions. Perhaps the communication that caused the most thought on our part, was the contribution envelope on which the giver had crossed out the word "alumnae" and substituted "alumni." On the double-take we saw that the name was obviously male, and that this giver was, of course, an alumnus of the Lesley College Graduate School. Did you ever think the day would come when we might have to change our name to the "Lesley College Alumni Association?"

Since the Annual Giving Program is a major project of our Alumnae Association, we attempted to involve a larger number of members in the program this year. Twenty-five classes had chairmen (most had been Presidents of their classes at Lesley), who wrote personally to their classmates. The success of their efforts, we feel, is evidenced by the program's new record of achievement. Many chairmen told us how delighted they were to have the opportunity to communicate with their old friends. It is hoped we will be able to expand this aspect of our program in the year ahead.

To all of those who helped — both volunteers and contributors — is extended our sincerest thanks for a job well done. Please be assured that your gifts to your college are greatly appreciated and used to good advantage. Working on this project with you all has been one of our most pleasurable and satisfying assignments.

In Memory of Deceased Alumnae
Lesley Alumnae Association

Marion C. Stringham is the new Dean of Students at Lesley. Dean Stringham comes from the University of Michigan, where she served as Student Affairs Research Coordinator, gaining valuable experience working with student organizations and activities. Lesley's new Dean of Students, who comes originally from New York, is a graduate of Hunter College of the City of New York, and New York University, where she received her M.A. in Human Relations Education. Dean Stringham attended the University of Michigan, where she is a Candidate in Philosophy, Higher Education. She expects to receive her Ph.D. this year.

Several new activities are planned for this year. Gail Roberts Dusseault '60 and Geraldine Nye '63 are co-chairmen of the Undergraduates Committee, making an effort to get Lesley students more involved in Association programs.

ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT FALL CONVOCATION GUEST

Lesley's Fall Convocation was held on September 14, at the First Church Congregational, Cambridge. Among the platform guests for the occasion was Beatrice Marden Glickman '40, your Alumnae Association President.

The traditional capping of seniors preceded convocation exercises and was conducted by Mr. David Honick, Associate Professor of English, and Mrs. Alma MacCormack, Associate Professor of Elementary Education and Class Advisor. Dr. Leslie M. Oliver, Professor of English, was the guest speaker for the convocation. He presented a stirring address on "Learning to Live".

LESLEY PLANS NEW ENGLAND KINDERGARTEN CONFERENCE

"Focus on Learning" is the theme of this year's New England Kindergarten Conference, to be held at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Park Square, Boston, on November 17. The annual Conference, which last year drew over one-thousand educators from New England and New York, is sponsored by the College's Graduate School. Lesley Alumnae are invited to attend and may obtain further information on registration from Mrs. Mary Mindess, Associate Professor of Early Childhood Education, Lesley College

CLUB SECRETARIES — PLEASE NOTE

If you wish to have your Club news in the "Review", please be sure that information regarding meetings, election of officers or other activities is sent to the Alumnae Office. Jean Cogan McKeon '52 will also need this information to help you plan Club activities.

DEADLINE FOR CHRISTMAS CHAIR ORDERS

If you are planning on ordering a Lesley College Chair, to be delivered in time for Christmas, the Alumnae Office must have your order not later than Wednesday, November 22.

NEWS and NOTES from the Alumnae Office

A NEW NAME FOR THE MAGAZINE

The interest shown by Lesley Alumnae for continuing news and information about their alma mater has sparked a change in the title of the magazine. Starting with this issue (as you have probably noted from the front cover), this publication will be known as the "Lesley Alumnae Review". As always, contributions of articles, ideas for stories, and general class information will be welcomed for consideration.

ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION BOARD OF DIRECTORS AND CHAIRMANSHIPS

The new President of the Lesley Alumnae Association and Chairman of the Board is Beatrice Marden Glickman '40, from Natick, Mass. Beatrice will be working with Marjorie Brenner Lipkin '57 and Mary Bonzagni Ditto '36, Vice Presidents, in planning and implementing Association programs for this year. Marguerite Shamon Delany '50, will serve as Treasurer and Edith H. Cheever '56 is Secretary.

Other board members will direct the several areas of activities planned by the Association for the coming year. Jean Cogan McKeon '52 will help coordinate club functions and advise club presidents. Jean will be helped in this important job by Myrtle Pierce Aulenback '39. Mary Bonzagni Ditto '36 and Melba Kyriacos Collins '47 will be heading the Scholarship Program. Mary McCarron Mead '25 and Joyce Karp Rosenthal '60 will serve as co-chairmen of the Alumnae Annual Giving Program again this year. Chairman for the Nominating Committee is Helen Phinney MacNeile '34, who will be serving her second year in this capacity, but for the first time will be sitting on the Board as an ex-officio member.

NORTH SHORE MASSACHUSETTS

President: Marilyn English Riley '59
5 Tapley Road, Lynnfield, Mass.

Secretary: Sara Rubin Cohen '25
25 Beverly Road, Swampscott, Mass.

The North Shore Club held its Spring Meeting on Saturday, May 20th. A pot-luck supper was held at the home of Marilyn English Riley '59 to raise funds for the Alumnae Scholarship. The proceeds, $25.00, were sent to the College. Mrs. Wallis Joulding held an enlightening discussion about UNICEF (United Nations International Childrens' Educational Fund). The members were very interested and felt that the Club might in the future take action to aid UNICEF. Many thanks to Marilyn English Riley '59 for so graciously offering her home for the occasion; to Sara Rubin Cohen '25, Melba Kyriacos Collins '47, Joyce Karp Rosenthal '60 and Thelma Rubin Leshner '34; Marjorie Stearns, Althea Harris Jackson '40, Gail Guimond '60, Anne De Luca Cote '58, Marion Abrams '63, and Anne Sampson Watson '55.

MASSACHUSETTS WORCESTER

President: Nancy Gore Goff '65
14 Dick Drive, Worcester, Mass.

Secretary: Mariam Goldberg '31
5 Suburban Road, Worcester, Mass.

The Fall Dinner Meeting of the Worcester Country Club was held on October 19th at the Charles Restaurant in Worcester. The event was planned by Dorothea Kearny Hennessey '36, Publicity Chairman; Eileen Sheehan Greedon '49, Program Chairman; and Nancy Gore Goff '65, President. Highlighted during the evening were discussions on poverty programs and other methods for helping socially deprived people in the Massachusetts area.

Marian Durrell received a surprise on her 40th anniversary as a teacher at the Foulkner Kindergarten, in Billerica, Mass. A "Marian Durrell Appreciation Day" was held for her this past spring and over 400 people returned to the school to show their appreciation for her life-long devotion to her students and her profession. Congratulations to you, Marian, from Lesley College.

Mary McCarron Mead and her husband, Frank, of Belmont, Mass., attended Homecoming '67. Mary's infectious smile and charm lent a great deal to the weekend—particularly to the operation of the Alumnae Store, set up and manned by her for the reunion.

Mary Reid, of New Canaan, Conn., received special recognition at the Center School Parents Council Dinner this past April for twenty years of teaching in the kindergarten and primary grades of the Center School. Our best wishes to you, Mary.

Ella Swanson Galvin, of 49 Monument Ave., Charlestown, Mass., served as Homecoming Chairman for her 30th Reunion Class, and gathered a large number of her classmates for the weekend. Among the "27's" were: Lucinda Anthony, Provincetown, Mass.; Mary Darr Clark, Indiana, Pa.; Helen Seaman Coffey, W. Barn-
