Bilinguals’ Emotional Responses in American English and Korean
Jihoon Lee
Ph.D in Educational Studies program, Graduate School of Education

Switching Codes, Switching Code: Bilinguals’ Emotional Responses in English & Greek (Panayiotou, 2004)

Independent Study

Goal: To explore whether Korean Learners of English (KLE) express sympathy differently depending on the language presented.

Participants: 50 Koreans living in America for more than three years, who have advanced proficiency in English

Method: the written type open DCT questionnaire (Lee, 2014) will be used

Panayiotou (2004) will be replicated with Korean-English bilingual participants.

Goal: To investigate whether Korean-English bilinguals express sympathy differently to a scenario according to respective languages presented.

Participants: 5 English-Korean bilinguals & 5 Korean-English bilinguals

Method: the same qualitative method (Panayiotou, 2004) will be used. (Interview+transcribe+translate)