Joyce Snyder, '61 Leaves Lesley

Cover Photo: Joyce Marshall Snyder, '61, shown here with Sheryl Bono, Data Processing Coordinator and Mary Norberg, Secretary, in the new Alumni Office on the second floor of the Administration Building, has resigned her position as Director of Alumni Programs to accept a position at Northeastern University as Associate Director of Alumni Annual Giving. The College is now searching for someone to fill the position on a permanent basis. Anyone who would be interested in working here at Lesley in that capacity should contact Donald Milton, Vice President for Public Affairs, Lesley College, 29 Everett St., Cambridge, MA 02238. The next issue of The Current will carry a full article on Ms. Snyder's career at Lesley.

"Remember the Ladies"

A limited number of copies of "Remember the Ladies," a stunning, full-color 172-page record in photographs and text of the permanent "Remember the Ladies" display in the Lesley College Library are available to the "Ladies of Lesley" who contribute $70 or multiples of that number to the Annual Alumni Fund in this anniversary year. These contributors will be known as Anniversary Associates.

Contributions should be made payable to Lesley College and mailed to the Lesley College Annual Fund, 29 Everett St., Cambridge, MA 02238.

Annual Fund Report

Message from Don A. Orton

It is with great pleasure that I share with members of the Lesley Community — alumni, parents, and friends, — the final report of our 1977-78 Annual Fund Program. Through your combined generosity, Lesley College received 1,874 gifts totaling $195,244.48. This support represents a financial increase of $50,753.00 over our all-time high figures of last year and has produced the highest dollar total in the 15-year history of Lesley's Annual Giving program.

Annual Fund dollars are an investment in Lesley’s capacity for growth and in its reputation as a high-quality independent college for the preparation of teachers and those interested in working with children. On behalf of Lesley College, thank you for your investment and generosity.
Message from Lorraine Shapiro, National Chairperson, Alumni Annual Fund 1977-78.

I am pleased to report the continued rise of the Alumni Annual Fund. The 1977-78 total is $42,528.00 contributed as a result of 1,614 alumni gifts. It is gratifying to note that 358 alumni made "new" gifts to the college and that 315 alumni increased their support for a total of $12,201.00.

We alumni form the largest body to which the college can turn for support. We share the experience of excellence in the education of women and the responsibility for providing the financial resources that will enable Lesley College to remain a leader in the field of education. For most of us, the Alumni Annual Fund is the avenue through which we can watch our investments grow and mature.

Naturally, as chairperson for the coming year, I am looking forward to increased support from our ever growing alumni population.

Transcript Requests

Mrs. Carolyn W. Knibbs, Transcript Officer in the Registrar's Office, has requested that when you write for a transcript to please give her as much information as possible, i.e., present name, name at graduation and any other changes of name, dates of attendance, etc. You are also reminded that the charge for transcripts is $1 for each copy beyond the first one ever requested. This fee should accompany each written request. The Registrar's office cannot accept telephone requests. All transcripts are affixed with the signature of the Registrar, the date and the College Seal. Any transcript mailed directly to the student must be marked Student Copy.

Members of the Class of 1923 returned to Lesley for their 55th Reunion last spring.

Close to 200 alumni and friends enjoyed the latest in fall fashions Oct. 12, as shown by Bloomingdale's at the new Bloomingdale's Fashion Center, Chestnut Hill, M.A. Proceeds benefited the Alumni Scholarship Fund.

Ronne Grufferman Kaplan, '70, was a guest of the Lesley Collaborative for Educational Development (LCED), Sept. 29. She is Special Assistant to the Assistant Secretary of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

CLASS NOTES

Gladys Heroy Griffin contributes the sad news that her sister, Marie Heroy Douglass, passed away April 27 at the Ridgewood Manor in Portsmouth, NH. A memorial service was held for her in her church, St. Mary’s-By-The-Sea, Point Pleasant Beach, NJ on June 10. Gladys remembers that she and Marie loved their Lesley days and graduated together with the class of 1917.

'22

Marion Allen Folger of Nantucket reports that grandson Peter F. Folger has become the third generation of Folgers to attend Dartmouth College. Peter '82 joins his father David '53, uncle Edward '53 and grandfather Joseph '21 in attending the Hanover, NH, Ivy League school.

'23

Pauline Davenport Sawyer living with her retired husband in Concord, NH, writes of her three sons and proudly reports on her seven grandchildren.

Margaret Carroll Sampson has gone back to the classroom as a volunteer remedial tutor for the Brockton, MA, Catholic Charities after retiring in 1974 from 24 years teaching 1st and 4th graders in the Whitman, MA, schools. Her daughter, Anne Sampson Watson, is a '51 Lesley graduate.

'24

Edith Hulten Bibbins' activities this year included a delightful trip on the Mississippi Queen from New Orleans. Since her husband’s retirement 11 years ago, the two have traveled extensively by automobile through the northeastern states and Canadian provinces. Edith reports that both her son and daughter are married and living closely. She has five grandchildren; the oldest attends Montana State University.

Mary Shearan Donohoe retired in 1974 from the Woburn Public Schools where she was teacher and principal for 45 years. Her daughter became a teacher at Reading High School, and her twin sons are both doctors practicing in Woburn.

Adele Gruener, '20

In Memoriam

Funeral services were held for Adele Gruener at Church of the Good Shepherd, Watertown, MA, Jan. 23. She was 79 years old.

A graduate of the class of 1920, Miss Gruener began her career in New London, CT, where she was born. She moved to Watertown in 1922 and taught primary grades there until her retirement in 1970.

Her involvement with the Red Cross was recognized by an Award for 50 years of dedicated service. This included over 1,700 volunteer hours as a Saturday clinic secretary for Massachusetts General Hospital, work in the Motor Corps, and the blood program as well as instructing first aid classes in Cambridge.

An active member of Church of the Good Shepherd, she had taught in the Sunday School and served as Sunday School Director. She had also served as a speaker at State Conventions.

Mildred Capodilucci Barberio and her husband, both retired now, enjoy getting away from Massachusetts winters on their travels.

Eleanor Stedman Berry of Wolfeboro, NH, and Boca Raton, FL, keeps up with Lesley happenings and plans to visit the school soon.

Kathleen Macbeth Dowd is tremendously proud of granddaughter, Terry Lynn Dowd, who graduated as a four year Dean's list student from Southern Connecticut College. Another granddaughter, Lisa Kathleen Magesky, was valedictorian at her high school graduation.

Ella Swanson Galvin, whose daughter, Denise Galvin Swan, is a 1967 Lesley graduate and resides with her retired husband in Charleston, SC. Florida and Florida would like to hear from classmates for a possible get-together.

Madalene Sedgeick Hubbard and her husband F. Edgar, a retired college professor, reside in the town of New London, CT. Edgar graduated from Union College. They have four grandchildren and enjoy traveling in the area states to be a speaker at State Conventions.

Frank and Mary (McCurton) Mead have just returned from a trip to Ireland and are getting ready to return to their winter home in Florida where they play a lot of golf. Frank is the fundraiser for his 50th out of MIT while Mary is helping to celebrate Lesley's 70th birthdays.

Ruth Truestake Reserve traveled to Bermuda in February, 1978. In her hometown of Alexandria, Virginia, she is a volunteer remedial reading teacher, and a key person in that community’s “Meals on Wheels” program.

Gretta Becker Sauer living in Shawnee Mission, Kansas, is very active in the Alpha Delta Kappa International Honorary Sorority for women educators of which she is Regional Grand Vice-President and has traveled to six area states to be a speaker at State Conventions.

Eleanor Matthews Lucier is bursting with pride over grandchildren Paul, Marc and Nicole the most recent.

Charlotte Marsh Caswell attended her 50th class reunion in May '78 with her daughter Shirley of Squantum, MA.
Nell Russin Goldberg has been traveling a lot since her retirement. Recently she visited Iran, the Orient, Israel, and England, finding her experiences very interesting, educational and broadening.
Doris Nelson Harrington has retired after 22 years of the nursery school business in Maryland. She and her husband are presently enjoying rural life on six rolling acres in Montross, Virginia.

'29
Priscilla Newell Barstow and her retired husband, whose lives center around their seven grandchildren, spend their year in Florida and on Cape Cod.
Helen Mather Benjamin is still living in Brimfield, Massachusetts, where she is busy with church activities and four grandchildren. She winters each year at Treasure Island, Florida.
Lora Standish Brouhard who has experienced some health problems is cheered nevertheless by the blossoming good health of Lesley and hopes to visit "that exciting new campus."
Catherine E. Crosby enjoys lots of leisure time now, and spends her winters in Pompano Beach, Florida, with her sister.
Rachel French Packard and her husband are enjoying retirement in the lovely college town of Middlebury, Vermont. Her daughter is the mother of two boys in Dayton, Ohio; her son is a guidance counselor at Christian High School.
Gertrude Sanborn Sands reports that her husband retired in December, 1977, as Massachusetts Commissioner of Probation. The couple spent the Christmas holidays in Portugal, where their son, a major, is a member of the NATO staff.
Elizabeth Boynton Shumway is recovering from a bone fracture suffered when she slipped on the stairs last May. She has good progress to report on that front, and sends love and best wishes to all her '27, '28 and '29 classmates and friends.

'30
Frances Conley Dunton is now retired from teaching in Boston. Her husband is working for Conrail.
Evelyn F. Ford, a retired state employee of Massachusetts, is still active with the Blue Hill Council of the Girl Scouts of America.
Evelyn Winslow Hood retired in 1969 after teaching 18 years at the Perkins School for the Blind. She resides in Kendallville, IN, where her youngest son also lives.

'31
Gladys Canfield Frost retired after 26 years as teacher and nursery school director with her husband in Holyoke, MA, where they enjoy traveling, gardening, contract bridge and reading.
Beatrice Grant Gellerson and her husband Arnold, both retired, follow the same pattern of many native New Englanders trying to escape the harsh winters by spending six months in the winter season in Florida and the remainder in their home state of Maine. Beatrice keeps busy with an interest in the "Right to Read Program" and the "Little Red Schoolhouse for the Retarded" in Dover-Foxcroft, ME.
Isadora Michelene Ollphant sadly reports the passing of her husband in January of '78. Theirs was a 42-year marriage.
Ruth Hascall Pratt wintered in Vero Beach, Florida along with several other Lesley graduates. She reports that the "snowbirds" enjoy the balmy weather and citrus fruit, but always look forward to returning north in the spring.
Elizabeth ("Tommy") Thomas has a grandniece at Lesley now — Patricia Ann Thomas. Now retired, she continues to spend winters in Sarasota, Florida, and summers in Bennington, Vermont.

'32
Florence Gardner Ballus and her husband have retired to Union City, CA.
Julia Planagan Corbett retired in June, 1976, from the Lowell School system after 30 years of service as a kindergarten teacher. She continues to live in Lowell, Massachusetts.
Mary Doole Sarre has celebrated 39 years of marriage to her husband, Louis. They have two sons, both married and they have five grandchildren. A family business of three leather goods and luggage shops keeps them all pretty occupied.
Edna Stephenson Wintle has kept in touch with Lesley roommates Helen Gould Clark and Ethel Brown Keer when she meets with them in Florida. She also reports making contact with Hazel Dinsmore Nolan, a '31 graduate of Lesley. All are well says Edna and are keeping busy.

Marian Eleanor Smith Hilton is presently serving as president of York County Retired Teachers Association. She is also a volunteer in the emergency room of Wentworth-Douglass Hospital in Dover, New Hampshire, and at the "Strawberry Banke" restoration of Portsmouth, New Hampshire.
Pauline Regan Rodgers returned to winter in Jensen Beach, Florida, with friends, following the death of her husband in June, 1977, at their summer house in Stratton, Maine.

'34
Ella May Purington Curtis wrote to inform Lesley alumni of the death of her friend and classmate, Mary Kerr ("Betty") Foss in Dallas on July 4, 1976. She tells us that Betty's mother, Alma Allison Kerr, was a graduate of Lesley College, too — class of 1913.
Gertrude Jennings La Frenz is pleased to be kept abreast of all the activity at the College and has kept in touch with classmates Eleanor Gilbert and Margaret Conley.
Blanche S. Young retired but, as she says, is "busy, busy, busy." She is vice-president of Woman's Club and Delta Kappa Gamma (Zeta) Chapter, working actively in retired teachers and religious education organizations, and also involved in community politics. She somehow finds time for golf, skiing, concerts, plays, and travel.

Barbara D. Buchanan retired in July '77 after a satisfying, enjoyable teaching career with seventh and eighth grade English students in Farmington, MA. Barbara now occupies herself with civic work and pleasurable home activities.
Since retiring as a kindergarten teacher, Alice Goodrich Clark has served as chair of her church's Day Nursery School Committee, which organized a Day Kindergarten. In addition to her work as an Avon representative, Alice and her husband have recently become antique dealers, doing much of their business at flea markets.
Doris Hartwell Granger and her retired UNH professor husband are the parents of a Lesley graduate student. Doris continues to be a member of Delta Kappa Gamma and is doing Gesell Developmental examining. She and her husband have made two cross country trips following different routes within the past two years.

Eleanor Twitchell Gustafson and her husband are keeping very busy with their paper and aluminum recycling project; they donate proceeds to the Gustafson Scholarship Fund of Kansas University. She calls the work "hard but rewarding." In their spare time, the Gustafsons "hike and bike" as much as possible.

'36
Katherine Stoddard Berg was president of the 1936 Domestic Science class and is married to retired insurance agent Roy F. Berg reports on her two children, John S., a Commander in the United States Navy and married daughter Lee Berg Gardner, the first woman president of the Marietta College Alumni Association.

Beatrice Marden Glickman: Teacher, Writer and Active Lesley Alum

In America, over six million working mothers with pre-school age children have one problem in common: Who cares for the baby? Baffled by the variety of child care alternatives, many parents do not know where to turn for help in creating the best situation for their children and themselves.

Who Cares for the Baby? Choices in Child Care, by Beatrice Malden Glickman '40 and Nesha Bass Springer provides much helpful information and many practical answers. Their book explores the pros and cons of infant day-care, the wide range of available child care alternatives, and the guidelines for determining what kind of care is most appropriate for each child and parent.

The following review of Who Cares for the Baby? appeared recently in Publishers Weekly:

Two women who care deeply about children and the dilemma of child care in our time, when increasingly mothers must work outside the home, discuss and analyze in depth all the child care options available today. This is an invaluable book that should be read by young parents who are raising families and need guidance in learning what is best for them and their small children when the economic "pressure cooker" (or other factors) require that the mother seek day-care help. Glickman is a former supervisor at Boston's Children's Hospital Medical Center, and Springer is a journalist specializing in child education. Wary of day-care centers, which they saw as wrongly supplanting mothers in the home, they began their book with one view - and, after research and realistic thought, changed it. The result is one of the most honest, open-minded surveys yet produced in this field. With affecting concern the authors cover parents' needs, the whole spectrum of child care alternatives (including Russian, Swedish, Chinese, and Israeli "solutions"), infant development and much more. With sound realism they offer sensitive guidelines for the best kind of other-than-mother care in our complex, troubled society.

Bea Glickman '40 has taught in a one-room schoolhouse in Alabama, a kindergarten in a wealthy suburb of Boston, a settlement house in East Boston and a day-care center in Cambridge. She ran her own nursery school for six years and later supervised the alternative education program at Boston Children's Hospital. In her "spare time" she writes poetry. Bea is a past president of the Alumni Association and has been actively involved with Lesley for many years.
Beatrice Mar den Glickman, ’40, received the Alumni Recognition Citation from Alumni Awards Chairperson Elizabeth Flemming McMorrow, ’57, at the 1978 Reunion Luncheon.

Mary Lou White DeNardis; Named "Outstanding Woman"

The first recipient of the Hamden Junior Woman's Club of Hamden, CT, for "Outstanding Woman in the Community" was Mary Lou White DeNardis '60, a native of Hamden and wife of Senator Lawrence DeNardis. Mary Lou has initiated and supported many worthwhile projects over the years and has served her community and family in numerous ways.

Since graduating from Hamden High School and Lesley College, Mary Lou has taught school in New York and Mt. Carmel. She was volunteer librarian at Father Barry Junior High School in Hamden and taught CCD classes at St. Joan of Arc Church in Hamden. In 1972 she was listed in Outstanding Young Women of America.

As mother of three sons and one daughter she has been involved with PTA work and PTU (Parents and Teachers in Unity) — a group formed for parents of children with learning disabilities. For the past five years she has been on the board of directors of the Elizabeth Ives School for special children.

At the moment Mary Lou's special project is "Friendship Gate" — a Hamden area residence for mentally retarded adults who live in a self- supporting family environment. Mary Lou is a member of the board of directors and was instrumental in organizing the first house. She is currently helping with the renovation of a second house to accommodate more people. In addition to these and many other involvements, Mary Lou is Lesley Alumni Regional Representative for the New Haven area.
Susan Shelton Atwater reports having completed a term as Director of Social Services for the State of Delaware (’75-’76). She and her family, her husband a teacher in the Delaware Technical Community College, and son, four years old, are living in Wilmington. Susan would like to hear from classmates Marlene Steinman and Barbara Streiler Glodstone.

Margherita Vaeirea Caron, active in North Andover, MA, community affairs and the Title I Math and Language Development Program for that town, wants classmates to know that she and husband, John, have four children: Mary Lou, 14; John Jr., 11; Paul, 9; and Jeanne 6½, and that she is very proud of Lesley’s continuing growth and advancement.

Katherine Donnelly Mueller seems to spend most of her days traveling between her home and the pre-schools which her three children attend.

Golda Siegel Doyle is presently working for a local radio station, WKFD, in Newport, Rhode Island, broadcasting local Newport news. She and husband, Tom, now have a daughter in first grade, and Golda finds it quite a new experience to be a parent and not a teacher.

Joan Sorkin Dreter has been working parttime at Northeastern University in the Department of Cooperative Education as an assistant in counseling and job placement since March, 1977. She finds it fun and rewarding to be back in the field of education. Her three boys are now 15, 12, and 10 and Joan reports that they keep the household quite active.

Phyllis Ledewitz Press is substitute teaching in Oyster Bay, New York, where her husband is Rabbi at Oyster Bay Jewish Center. Phyllis writes a monthly column in the synagogue bulletin, book reviews and synagogue services. She still finds being the wife of a rabbi and mother of three a “liberating” experience. Daniel is 12; Deborah is 11; and Adam is 6.

Jane Sugarman Sach’s husband, Martin, has a new job with IBM research and is quite happy. He left his research employment at Yale University last year. Jane is still teaching in New Haven, this year in the fifth grade, and is also teaching chess in the school system. She and her husband have moved from Orange, Connecticut to Westport, Connecticut.

Sandra Wiles Marquis Tenaglia was married in July, 1977 to James Tenaglia. She is still living in Winchester, Massachusetts.

Mary Gustafson Watt had an article on “Thinking About Thinking,” published by the Brookline, MA, Teachers Center. She and husband Dan are both teachers in the Brookline Public School System. Dan and Molly had an enjoyable three week bicycle tour in Ireland this past summer.

Susan Harlow Howe attended her class’s 15th reunion at Lesley in 1977. She thinks the new campus is great, and says the new curricula “make me want to return.” Susan lives with her husband, a psychiatric social worker at HEW, in Alexandria, Virginia.

Cindy Zalvan Katzef finds that her two daughters, Wendy, 16, and Tammy, 9, are keeping her quite busy. She has also assumed responsibilities as registration coordinator for Interface ’78, a large data communications conference and exposition of which husband, Richard, is vice president.

Sandra Rosenthal Schultz’s son, Michael, was chosen as one of two fifth graders from his school (the Ward School in Newton) to attend Lesley’s Young Writer’s Conference on January 20, 1978. Sandra reports he really enjoyed spending a day at “mom’s college.” Sandra is a full-time homemaker; her husband is a self-employed dentist.

Naomi Belson Stamper has been living with her family for five years in Berkeley, and loves the California life. She has a part-time job teaching children with learning disabilities at St. Mary’s hospital, and a full-time job at home with daughter, Robin, 12, Marjorie, 10, and Alison, 7. Husband, Bob, is an ophthalmologist at Pacific Medical Center. Naomi recently spent a delightful day with Robert Davis Bento and her family.

Arlene Wilson Wiggetman received an M.Ed from Lesley’s graduate school in 1972. She is teaching corrective and preventive reading in Lynn, under an ESEA Title I grant. Husband, Alan, is now working as a Staff Pharmacist for Medi-Mart in Chelsea. Arlene’s daughter, Abby, is in junior high, second daughter Andrea is a sixth-grader, and son, Joseph, has made it all the way to third grade this year. Arlene says she is always pleased to hear about the high regard in which Lesley women are held.

Mary Anne Castellana, left, and Julia Foster, both of the Class of ’79, were presented with Alumni Scholarships of $1,000 each. The presentations were made at the 1978 Alumni Luncheon by Alumni Scholarship Chairperson Ellen Green Bloch, ’61.
Arlene Neufeld Berens and her husband Sandy are the parents of three children and are living in Savannah, Georgia.

Judith Kimball Emerson, a primary grades teacher in the University City Schools of St. Louis, Missouri, reports that school is especially interesting this year since she has a little boy from Israel who is learning to speak English in her classroom. The family has recently moved into a roomy new house near their old neighborhood, and love the change.

Carolyn Mesolegites Geller and her husband Michael, the parents of Gregory, 11 and Amanda, 9, lived for five years in Italy. They are currently residents of Braeriff Manor, NY, where both are employed by Andrew Geller Company. Carolyn is marketing director and Michael as vice-president.

Dolores Glasser Orkin, a resident with her attorney husband, Don, and three children, Jeffrey, 13, Lisa, 12 and Laura, 9, of Sharon, MA, is a substitute teacher in the Sharon Public School System.

Geraldine Nye Pedrini has become the director of Sunshine Nursery School in Arlington. She has three sons: Ricky, 10; David, 8; and Robert, 4.

Amy Stellar Robinson lives in Sudbury, and is self-employed. Among her other accounts, she is a consultant at Lesley College.

Gail Epstein Kansky: Co-authors Holiday “Do-Book”

Upon graduating from Lesley in 1964, Gail taught fourth grade in Stoughton and then nursery school in Canton, MA. After becoming the mother of Kim and Kenny she turned to writing and illustrating children’s books as a way of keeping alive her interest in the educational field while remaining home with her young children.

Gail’s Jewish Holiday Do-Book, co-authored with Lois Englander and Judith Saacks, translates the Jewish holiday ideas into specific activities for children of all ages to explore when celebrating the traditional Jewish holidays. It includes crafts, games, recipes, songs, dances and more, designed to enhance children’s holiday experiences and promote individual senses of creativity and imagination.

Gail maintains that she “owes a great deal to Lesley as the background I received there was my largest asset in writing this book and the others that are yet to be published. The first sentence of the introduction (found on page 4) may well have been plucked out of my subconscious from a Lesley lecture.”

Copies of Gail’s book are available in Jewish bookstores nationwide through Bloch Publishing Company.

Since leaving Lesley, Judith Hirsch Liss has received an MA in ECE from Hunter College and a specialist’s certificate in special education from the Ontario Ministry of Education. Now in her eleventh year of teaching, Judith teaches children with learning disabilities in Ontario, Canada, where she is employed by the North York Board of Education. Husband, Saul, is the national director of the Bank of Nova Scotia; son Sam is now 8, daughter Jessie, 6. The family lives in Thornhill, Ontario.

Rosanne Siracusa Centurino resides with husband, Buddy, and two sons, Jonathan, 6, and Todd, 3½, in Braintree, MA. Rosanne has only recently begun substituting in the Braintree school system.

Virginia Lee Maloney works as a microwave supervisor for EASTCO. Still living in Cambridge, she has participated in writing a small poetry book combined effort of a group of women with whom she did graduate work. The book is now in the marketing stage; Virginia found the experience of its production very memorable and special.

Carol Brainerd Roberts reports on her family’s “typical” life in Amherst, New Hampshire. Her three children are all girls: Becky is 10 this year, Jessi is 7, and Jenni, 3. Carol has not been teaching, but she sounds very busy! As a member of a local writer’s club, she writes town news for two local papers; she is a licensed daycare mother, and belongs to a consciousness-raising and women’s group known as WISE. When Jenni is a little older, Carol hopes to enter the medical field in some capacity.

Gail Gruber Trelt taught for five years as a kindergartner teacher until the arrival of two children, Julie Ann, 8 and Jeffrey, 5. She received her Master’s degree from the University of Bridgeport, CT. in 1975.
Elaine Saykin Weiner: Elected to West Hartford Scool Board

A resident of Winchester Drive in West Hartford, CT and former teacher there at Duffy and Whiteman schools, Elaine S. Weiner '65 successfully campaigned for election to the West Hartford School Board. Declining academic competence was one of the issues stressed by Elaine in her campaign. When asked to share some of her campaigning experiences with Current readers, she sent in the following:

Believing that there is a pattern of phases and stages in our lives that can be stretched to their fullest potential, I have viewed each of these stages as a turning point for personal development. My first five years after graduation from Lesley presented an introduction into the world of work and marriage. During the early stage of child-rearing I was preparing, academically and psychologically, for a future career in "professionalism." Rather than teach, I wanted to add a new dimension, still education and human relations related, but in the field of supervision and administration.

With a master's degree and Sixth Level Program, when candidates for nomination to the Board of Education were being sought, I felt a personal need to use my knowledge in a place where policy in public education is so rarely made by educators. An educator, I felt, would have insight and sensitivity to the problems a Board of Education would face, a knowledge of trends and structures and experience with the educational process. Having been the student representative to the Educational Goals Committee at Lesley and a board member at a long-established cooperative nursery school, the functioning of the board was not unfamiliar to me.

As I began to pursue my campaign for the nomination I realized that I had unwittingly become a politician, a reality which had changed my perspective toward the election process. What I would have liked to express as being educationally sound, might not have been politically practical. It became necessary throughout the campaign to depend on good judgment to make intellectual compromises while still creating a personal identity in terms of the issues.

To obtain Party support, I had to meet with Party leaders and then present myself to ten district committee caucuses. On August 3, 1977, my name was placed in nomination at the convention. I was endorsed and then set loose to become known to the 68,000 populace of the town of West Hartford. In the next three months I found this task the most exhilarating, exhausting and altogether exceptional experience I have ever encountered. There is no better way to learn the workings of politics and human nature in so encapsulated a time.

My days and evenings took on a non-stop routine of preparing campaign strategy, press releases, organization of volunteers, research of facts, personal appearances and speaking engagements at fund-raisers, coffee groups, panel discussions and debates, as well as door-to-door campaigning, distributing brochures at supermarkets and shopping centers and waving to passing motorists at 7:00 A.M.

Although I had the campaign support of hundreds of volunteers, I felt many times that I was on a long, lonely road, alone.

I found that the key to success in relating to groups was to know where people were coming from. I rediscovered my leadership role in sensitivity training and group process as a "must" factor in controlling sometimes hostile group discussions. My personal rules were to know the facts, analyze and evaluate, listen and assess the questions and most importantly, remember at all times who I was.

Having won a four-year seat on the seven-member Board of Education is an awesome responsibility. Setting policy for the educational future of nearly 10,000 students in 18 schools so that they have the opportunity to meet their greatest potential, while remaining fiscally responsible to the taxpayers puts a heavy burden on the shoulders of all Board Members in these forthcoming years of declining enrollment and increasing per pupil costs.

West Hartford operates on an educational budget of $23 million, nearly 60% of the total Town budget and spends the greatest per pupil amount of dollars in the State of Connecticut. For a great many years, West Hartford has been looked to as a leader in the education of American youth. I have been given and have accepted the challenge of keeping that reputation a reality.

The couple moved to Springfield, Ohio, where Mary is the coordinator of Adult Re-entry Programs at Clark Technical College and admissions counselor. Don is president of Patton Safety Products, Inc., headquartered in Springfield.

Frances Nonni is busy with two jobs—taking care of her 18-month-old son and teaching the third grade at the Longfellow School in Cambridge, MA.

From East Pepperell, Massachusetts, Jeanne Perkins reports that she is working as an activities therapist for the Child Development Team on Pediatrics at Emerson Hospital in Concord, Massachusetts.

Joan Hermann Powell retreated from the teaching profession after six years in the classroom at St. John, MA, teaching 1st, 2nd, and 3rd grades. She had her first child, a daughter, in September, 1977, and since then has been busy setting up a resource room and teaching children in a private kindergarten in Framingham, MA.

Sherilyn Jan Rosenberg has been teaching sixth grade for four years at the Harry L. Bain School in West New York, New Jersey. She says she loves every minute of it.

Having completed an M.Ed. in reading and language arts at the University of Vermont in 1977, Linn S. Wilson is now employed as Reading Coordinator for Windham Central Supervisory Union serving students K-12 in ten schools located in southeastern rural ski country of Vermont. Linn finds her job very challenging and quite a change from being a classroom teacher. Her job includes observation, testing and diagnosis of children with reading/learning problems; consultation with teachers on curriculum; in-service training, workshops, and courses; serving as a model teacher for introducing alternative methods on instruction and as a member of Pupil Personnel Team. If that weren't enough to keep anyone busy, Linn is still actively involved with Vermont's Right to Read Program, Vermont Council on Reading, and the New England Reading Association.

Deborah Ohlsson Worth has moved back to Massachusetts. She is living in West Billerica and would love to hear from any of her classmates in the area.
After six years of teaching in Brooklyn, New York, Geraldine Castronovo will soon move to Houston, Texas, to a new teaching position, and a new way of life.

Susan Wolfe Elmore took a year's sabbatical leave from her second grade teaching job to attend Boston University Graduate School, where she is earning an M.Ed. with specialization in elementary math education.

Nancy Coyne Glazer and her husband, a chemist with the Pfizer Company, living in Waterford, CT, happily report the birth of Adam Jeremy, March 19, 1978.

Jeremy, a primary school remedial opportunity center in Victoria, Australia, where her husband works as art director and commercial artist for Geoff Neri Advertising. Ellen and her husband visited Ellen's family in Milton, Massachusetts in August and September, 1977, and Ellen was able to show her husband Boston, Cambridge, and Lesley! He was impressed with all three, and Ellen thought Lesley's new campus was incredible. On the way back to Australia, a two-day stop in Hawaii was quite a treat. Since leaving Lesley, Ellen has earned a M.S. in remedial-developmental reading from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

In Lynn, Massachusetts, Cheryl Ann Young Schwartz is on leave of absence from teaching grades five and six to mother her new baby boy, Mark Israel, born July 1, 1977. Husband Arthur is a periodontist in Stoneham, Massachusetts.

Joan Schwartz Smith returned to the Boston-Cambridge area from New York City with her husband, an electrical engineer, where they are living in Natick. Joan is a Resource Room teacher in the Needham Public School System.

Linnea Turner was married on July 7, 1977, to Odgen Food Corporation. After teaching second grade for four years on Mt. Desert Island in Maine, she is now working at Babson College in Wellesley and enjoying the change. Linnea and her husband live in Newton, Massachusetts.

Miriam Finklestein Berkelhammer taught third grade in Pittsburgh, where she also completed a master's degree at the University of Pittsburgh. She is now living in Providence, Rhode Island, with her husband, Robert, an attorney.

Eugenia Zanetos Buba and her husband, marketing manager with the Digital Equipment Corporation, are living in Jamaica Plain, MA, with their first born child, Jonathan. Eugenia is a Special Needs Teacher in the Lowell Public School System.

Martha Whelan DeVos is expecting her first child in October. She is a kindergarten teacher in the Plymouth Public Schools and her husband is an instructor at Johnson and Wales College in Providence, Rhode Island. Marnie and her husband live in Plymouth, Massachusetts.

Joyce McCarthy Gigante and husband, Chuck, had their first child on November 22, 1977 — a son named Charles Richard, Jr. Chuck is a nutrition specialist at Baxter Travelen Laboratories, and the family plans to soon move to the North Shore area of Boston. They are presently living in Groton, Massachusetts.

Laurel Bowker Kime announces the birth of her second child, Randy Edward, who was born May 6, 1977 to join sister Stacey, now three. Laurel's husband, Michael, works for Honeywell, and the family lives in Nashua, New Hampshire. Laurel sends a special "hello" to Laurie-Jo Greller.

At last word, Charlotte Krupp Lerch was living in Mansfield, Massachusetts in a new home, and was working in a Title I, K-2 program in Norwood, Massachusetts. Her first child was born in March.

From Lynbrook, New York, Lois Hertzberg Nevitt reports, "Now we are three!" Lindsay Jill arrived July 11, 1977. Lois is busy at home, and husband, Bob, is an accountant.

Susan Solmonson was married August 20, 1977 to Darrell Ross, Harvard Law, '72. Susan is a first-grade teacher in Weymouth, Massachusetts, and her husband owns Ross-Simons Jewelers in Rhode Island. The couple presently lives in Providence, and plans to move to a new home in July.

Laura Tinker married Francis Sexton, Jr. on July 1, 1978. Laura is a special needs instructor in the Chelmsford Public Schools.

Tips for Teaching

A new feature is slated to begin with the next issue of The Current, entitled "Teaching Tips." It will consist of short items on teaching techniques which you have used successfully and are willing to share with your fellow Lesleyans. Why not sit down now and send along that great idea that has worked for you?

Beth Zatschni Waldo is living in Olivette, Missouri, with husband, Philip, a physician, and two daughters: Maani, and Lauren, born January 20, 1977.

Theodora Elkinton Waring is still living in Cambridge, where she has completed training as a hospital chaplain. She looks forward to becoming a staff chaplain in the near future.

Sally Brenner Willis is very busy with an 3-year-old son named Aaron Lester. The family lives in Portland, Maine.

Emma R. Zimmerman completed her degree work at Babson College and is now an accountant at American Fidelity in Newton, MA.

Christina Frost Booth was married in 1975 to Stephen Bayley Booth, a graduate of Boston University, class of '74. She spent 1976 teaching first grade in an American school in Saudi Arabia. Christina and Stephen returned to the U.S. in 1977 for the birth of their first daughter, Gretchen Anna, and are now living in Diamond Bar, California where Stephen has joined the CPA firm of Booth and Booth.

Pamela Caragianes Christodoulou and her husband recently bought their first home in Belmont and are very happy. Pamela is a home/hospital teacher in the Bureau of Pupil Services, Cambridge School Department, and her husband is an attorney with the firm of Burns and Levinson. Pamela sends special congratulations and best wishes to Leslie GToole McMahon '76 and her new husband.

Martha Louise Grodd DeMoss is presently working for the Yukon, Oklahoma, Public School System as a Helping Hands Volunteer plus doing some substitute teaching. Martha hopes to obtain a full-time teaching position in the near future in the Yukon schools. She invites all friends to write.

Lora A. Evans presented papers at two separate seminars dealing with education of the Deaf and Blind at the First World Congress on Future Special Education. The Congress was held at the University of Stirling in Scotland.

Jan R. Fogel will be teaching English as a Second Language at the Tennoji English Academy in Osaka, Japan, beginning in April, 1978. She got the job all on her own, by writing to the school. Jan says she is both nervous and excited about spending a year working and living in Japan.

Anne Johnson Gilford keeps getting confused with another Anne Johnson who was in the class of '73. (We'll make every effort to straighten it out Anne!) This Anne ('74) is a student at the National College of Education and lives with her attorney husband in Evanston, IL.

Janie S. Glantz is paradoxically, "a permanent substitute" in the Mt. Vernon, NY, public school system. She is also working on her Master's degree in Early Childhood Education at the College of New Rochelle in New York.
Beverly Uze Greenblatt:
Teaching Through Poetry

Which of the following selections do you think young readers would enjoy the most?

Prose:
The wet, slippery skin, so hard to grasp and hold on to, has saved the life of many a frog.

Poetry:
Most frogs are brown or green or grey.
They always have wet skin —
A sticky liquid covers it
To keep the wetness in.

A frog swims faster when it’s wet
Than when its skin is dry.
When people try to grab a frog,
They have to try and try.

Beverly Uze Greenblatt (’74G) author of the above lines, describes for Current readers how she came to be a freelance writer of children’s materials.

As an elementary classroom teacher, I found that young children had more fun reading poetry — with a definite rhyme and rhythm — than they did reading prose. How many times have you been around a child who has just learned a song, a TV jingle, or a Mother Goose poem. She, he repeats it so many times that you find yourself in the shower singing, “I like my chicken finger-lickin’ good…”

Rhyme and rhythm are two elements that grab hold of our memories and won’t let go. Their cohesiveness is comforting. As a child, I found comfort in creating my own rhymes and rhythms. My poetry was an expression of personal feelings and of people and situations around me. As I matured, my childhood feelings and memories became less intense, yet they were never forgotten. What became more intense was my desire to teach and to personally communicate with young children.

I decided to study for a degree in Elementary Education. My classroom experience with first and second graders led to a Masters degree in Reading from Lesley in 1974. It was then that I decided to combine my feelings for children, educational background, and writing experience. I wanted to create my own teaching tools, preferably through the use of poetry. Thus, I became a free-lance writer of children’s educational materials.

For my first project, I wrote about insects because, sooner or later, most kids come into contact with insects. The resulting science poems became An Introduction to Insects. I had as much fun doing the research for these poems as I hope children will have reading them.

Another endeavor is a set of 10 colorfully illustrated classroom posters. Each poster introduces and reinforces — through verse — basic capitalization and punctuation rules, such as capital letters, periods, and abbreviations. As a freelance writer, my skills are for hire. My objective is to teach by combining rhyme and rhythm with colorful images, situations familiar to children, and interesting illustrations. I feel that instructional poetry can be used in almost any area of education, such as science, social studies, health, history, and language arts; poetry can be conveyed through many avenues, including basal readers, science kits, posters, fact sheets, filmstrips, television, trade books and newsletters.

Learning through poetry can be a stimulating, pleasurable experience. Hopefully, more and more teachers will utilize this teaching method.

(CAPITALIZATION AND PUNCTUATION POSTERS are available through Curriculum Associates, Inc., Woburn, MA 01801.)

Newsmaker Mary Aram

The following story appeared in the Melrose Free Press, October, 1977:

When Mary Aram ('76G) starts talking about all her projects, i.e., special needs teacher, author, working mother, hostess, she makes it all sound easy. Her quiet, uncluttered manner belies a very busy lady. She's the kind of person who, when jokingly asked, “What do you do in your spare time?” starts to tell you.

In addition to teaching a class of perceptually handicapped youngsters at Andover's Bancroft Elementary School, she is conducting a course in “Math for Elementary Teachers” at Lesley's Graduate School and has recently authored a special workbook for elementary youngsters who have trouble with math. It has been distributed to elementary schools nationally.

Mary has long specialized in helping children with particular learning disabilities. Her teaching philosophy developed during her years in inner-city schools in Rochester, N.Y., and Birmingham, AL, where many of the children in her classes were culturally deprived. If they weren't having success she made a special effort to find appropriate materials that would make the subject meaningful.

At one point a few years ago, when she was teaching a K-1 class, her supervisor suggested she use lots of “manipulatives” to teach beginning work with numbers. Her book, Learning to Add and Subtract Numbers 1-10 grew out of experiments along these lines. It relies on the use of objects the children can pick up and move around their papers, i.e., beads, buttons, tiny blocks, dominoes, pennies, crayons and dice. Mary says her book differs from other elementary math programs primarily in this use of manipulatives and the “multi-sensory” approach to math.

Learning to Add and Subtract Numbers 1-10, published by Educators Publishing Service, Inc., of Cambridge, MA, contains 68 worksheet masters and 143 lessons with detailed instructions for the worksheet, and suggests how teachers can develop supplementary lessons and materials for themselves.

Mary Aram is married to Melrose orthodontist Dr. Ali Aram, and lives in Andover, MA, with her two daughters.

Dorothy Williams Goodman has happy news. She got married in December, 1976 to Bryan Goodman, so now her children Ginnie and Michael have a stepfather. Dorothy herself has three new stepsisters. Predictably, she says her life is now very active and full of constant comings and goings. Dorothy is a sixth grade teacher in a middle school in Merrimack, New Hampshire, where the family lives. Her husband was a student at Boston University and graduated in special education in May, 1978.

Laura Arens was married to William J. Haley, III, a banker at Chemical Bank, New York City. Laura is a production coordinator for MacMillan Publishing Company. The couple lives in New Rochelle, New York.

Paula H. Johnson is teaching third grade in Lisbon, Connecticut, and is enjoying it very much. She is working part time on a masters degree at the University of Connecticut while living in Norwich.

Wendie Susan Kaster is living in Sudbury, Massachusetts. She is head teacher at Lincoln Community Children's Center.

Lynn A. Solover Massa is another Lesley graduate putting to good use her Lesley training as a Special Education teacher in the Sussex-Wantage Schools in New Jersey. She and her husband Robert were married July 2, 1978, and are living in Hamburg, NJ, where Bob is a realtor.
