"Quickly flow the days . . .

Seedlings turn overnight to sunflowers,

blossoming as we gaze!"

LESLEYAN 1976
LESLEY COLLEGE
CAMBRIDGE
MASSACHUSETTS

You know how I feel
you listen to how I think
you understand . . .
you're my friend,
Mary Mindess

When I am working
you are with me
when I am playing
you are with me
when I am alone
you are with me
even though
we may be apart
you are always
with me
S.P.S.

Time, which changes
people, does not alter the image we have retained of
them.
Marcel Proust

Friendship's Growth

Friendships do not grow up in any carefully tended and contemplated fashion . . . They begin haphazard.

As we look back on the first time we saw our friends we find that generally our original impression was curiously astray. We have worked along beside them, have consorted them drunk or sober, have grown to cherish their delicious absurdities, have outrageously imposed on each other's patience — and suddenly we awoke to realize what had happened.

We had, without knowing it, gained a new friend. In some curious way the unseen border line had been passed. We had reached the final culmination of . . . regard when two men rarely look each other straight in the eyes because they are ashamed to show each other how fond they are.

We had reached the fine flower and the ultimate test of comradeship — that is, when you get a letter from one of your "best friends", you know you don't need to answer it until you get ready to.
