Spectacle, Identity, and Otherness: Nine Poets Speak, Special Issue of The Journal of Pluralism, Pedagogy and Practice

Fall 2014

Elizabeth Gordon McKim

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.lesley.edu/jppp

Recommended Citation

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Lesley. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Pedagogy, Pluralism, and Practice by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Lesley. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@lesley.edu.
Elizabeth Gordon McKim

These poems will be included in McKim's new manuscript entitled: ELIZABETHERIDGE and the Necessity of Motion. The poems are inspired by her relationship with African American poet Etheridge Knight, from the time she met him in Memphis in 1978 until his death in Indianapolis in 1991, when he died in her arms.
Yesterday we drove from Memphis to Raimer Tennessee on the Mississippi line in a rented silver caddy to pay respects to E.K.’s daddy.

Etheridge Bushie Knight 1905-1950

We stop at the general store for directions. Deer up to two hundred pounds weighed here. IRS refunds paid here. Chaw/tobacco/beef jerky. Double/bubble/whisky.

We find the cemetery. Cross the tracks. Past the creek. Up the hill. To the part reserved for colored. (White folks portion of the boneyard distracted and closer to the traffic.) This the quiet place which looks out on a pond in slumber.

Cows graze here in summer. The stone is large and dignified.

Etheridge Bushie Knight
1905-1950
Eth moves near but not too near bows his head / slant feels what he comes to feel does what he comes to do then we get back in the silver caddy and drive back to Memphis in the bitter rain Eth now in deep and unremitting pain his hand on his burning liver and his mind on his daddy gotta watchout/gotta watchout gotta watchout/ for the ol' liver

We crawl into bed at the days inn hold tight and shiver watch the senate hearings on the gulf war press on and on we finally drop to sleep close to the Mississippi in Memphis Tennessee where the thin light screams and dread is in the air we breathe We breathe we breathe each other into dream

Bushie crossed the Tennessee/Mississippi line he crossed it on a mule to court Belzora

Bake a lil' bread/tote a lil' water Mama Mama can I marry your daughter Sampson Snake Root

“I’m gonna take you out to lunch where you ain’t never been before—“ you said “And make it good—“ I said You took me down beside the Frosty Tap where weary men and women wait for Meals on Wheels and a prayer for precious lord and we got lunch and now you're on the way to some place far away so when you get there find a place for me and make it good.

Today is Monday the day I was supposed to go to Puerto Rico to visit my Jenny girl and here I am in Indy town the war still raging.

Yesterday we went to Miss Belzora’s for lunch I took a long walk down North Dexter and Harding and beyond in the surprising February thaw.
People out washing cars. Kids on bikes.
Guys calling out from street corners.
People sitting on wide front Indiana porches.
Etheridge is sleeping almost full time now except for meals.
I talk a long time to his mama.
She tells me of auntie and her medicines tansey root / peach leaves cherry bark / palm lilies

sampson snake root
from the tree’s north side and the special dark mixture for the bad disease a man gets from a woman or a woman from a man We come home to the nickel watch custer's last stand on tv fall asleep early while the war still rages

*sampson snake root
sampson snake root

* My daughter Jenifer McKim lives in Puerto Rico and works as a journalist for The San Juan Star.

*We called the Housing Project 555 Massachusetts Avenue where we lived the triple nickel or sometimes just 'the nickel.'
Shoot Ten Times

In the Triple Nickel
555 Massachusetts Avenue Indianapolis
Indiana
Parker your ol' buddy always greets you the same way and you always greet him the same way:

“Shoot ten times 'fore you cock it Shoot ten times ‘fore you stop it Hold it level /you can shoot the devil”

Then you both take aim at each other and pull the trigger.

You are falling away falling away from me now The sun shutting down Indy town We /free/ peoples be the ice so thin and precarious precious/ days/ daze the ice skidding into my dreams we do not scramble for time we have had a whole amazement in time a placement test a packet a pocket full of rhyme some things done some things not done we turn and tremble we ramble we stumble we give ourselves over to the rumble the long journey home we began we begin again over and over full circle eth looks young his eyes bright not vodka dark eyes and morphine- delaudid dull eyes but clear across and over and dark so dark in the middle black and baby - blue milk rings around the black and the scar on his leg the one from being run over in philly after he left the homeless shelter in ny the one which was ropey and mottled and looked like the carapace of a rhino is now smooth and flat completely different than it looked a few weeks ago and what is unfinished is always unfinished and what is finished begins again

The Knife

Once I bought a knife a beautiful enamel- handled razor- sharp paring knife Bought it in Chinatown in San Francisco at a poetry gig ( the one you missed 'cause you were too messed/ up /to come / down/ and over and across ) the enamel handle painted with delicate embellishment: curling red blossoms and smoking blue dragons and curving green vines I put it in my blanket drawer for safe keeping

Then I noticed it was missing I knew you had taken the knife to arm yourself for the forays into the projects to get the rock you were blowing your life away on blow / blow/ all the way to crownhill/ cemetery/ in napland blow away boston blow away philly blow away new york memphis toledo minneapolis chicago blow away mississippi blow away baby

"I aint one of them suicide poets " poetry is about revolution and celebration and freedom seeking truth is you is truth is

you aint Old School Ties And Other Synchronicities

In the early fifties she was going to the oxford school for girls and her daddy's rule was golden in hartford connecticut under the sign of eisenhower and the travellers umbrella and she was wearing a grey flannel blazer emboldened with a school insignia and optimistic cheer while his streets were blazing with fury and fear when she was memorizing edgar allen poe he was in big windy chi/ca/go staring at the world from a flophouse or an abandoned car or living at the taft hotel with a big blues woman big may-belle and may was singing at the crown propellar and may was hooked and so was he while she was being permed and girdled tamed and taught to do the waltz to sing false notes he was already displaced and dancing to another drummer learning the ropes of penal farms and county jails and copping dope, while she was babysitting little blond kids through hot new england summers and filling dance cards with serious pale boys weighting to fill full their father's shoes, he was runnin' round town forging checks and dodging more dangerous news more serious blues ricocheting off staccato bebop sound while she was jitterbugging and conjugating french verbs and she didn't like elvis on account of his pelvis and she was bringing in tollhouse cookies for the over sixties club downtown and she was readying for college oh she was earnest and longing for love oh he was earnest and reaching for life he ran with a knife upheld to keep the heroes back he was gaining on some sharper knowledge in the joint his old school and when graduation came round she wore a white organza gown and carried twelve blood- red roses while his black blood was flowing underground with no guardian angel to respond to his black sound comin' round.

say no guardian angel to respond to his black sound comin’ round.
Pop of Blossom
February 2, 1991

pink buds and gardenias i want the pop of blossom eth's hands mesmermesmerize/rise sculpt the air in no despair a wisdom we can trust lies and mis/demeanors violations and manipulations minor and major thefts curl and uncurl in the tidal times and the winds pick them up and blow them out to sea a long time ago after the first time we made love you said to me i could ride the river with you lady all the way to the sea and you are a man who knows the river and I am a woman who knows the sea I grew with it it taught me when I was a little girl it rose and fell with me I know its storms and calms its grey days its clams its bright sun penny mornings i know ancient tide pools little wonder/worlds where chinaman caps/ barnicles/periwinkles sea urchins/mussels/kelp sleep in a strange realm i study the granite rocks their steadfast postures their scars and creasings their warnings their strange earth alphabet I watch wordlessly the tides pull in/ and out as you walk beside the old river mississippi you learn the streets and small towns and backwoods and the highways the corners where you shine shoes and shake off insults and grin into the blank sun you tell the tallest tales of running and ambling milling I leap over the shadows between the rocks the space between Unfinished Sestina For Elizabetheridge

We're off to Minneapolis and I'm scared, Eth, Look, I'm taking the air in great gulps, I'm tasting fire, I'm lifting off from earth, I'm not wasting a single breath and for me everything is breath because we're going to Minneapolis (in my mind it's India or the end of earth) Let's hope you'll be there to meet me, Eth, Don't fuck up or I'll snuff the fire and forget about taking the air

Though you know I love this fair, this festival between us, this magic breath, or I wouldn't be enroute to the fire in our room at the Holiday Inn, Minneapolis, and to you, K, tracer of lost persons, Eth, Etheridge, nudging me back to the black belly of earth

The deep rich return to earth (forget about air)
Now it's in the flesh of me Elizabeth and you Etheridge in our breath that's why we're off to Minneapolis that's why we have chosen fire which makes and breathes more fire which can not always warm the earth which is why I have flown to Minneapolis which is why we have to take care of what we make, which is ours, elizabetheridge, this wise and excellent Elizabetheridge